Special Dispatch to the Pittsburgh Commercial.

WASHINGTON, January 12, 1867.

Impeachment.

The Judiciary Committee did not hold any meeting to-day on the impeachment matter. The sub committee are arranging a list of witnesses. Colonel Forney is among the number, and will probably testify on Monday.

Personal.

Thad. Stevens was back in his seat to-day, and bears joking upon his defeat for the Senatorship quite philosophically.

Surratt.

The steamer Swatara, now on the way to the United States, with Surratt, the conspirator, on board, sailed from Lisbon on the 8th inst., and will arrive here between the 25th and 31st of January. The Swatara was fitted out and sailed from the Washington navy yard on the 14th of December, 1865.

The Maryland Senatorship.

The Democratic and Conservative members of the Maryland Legislature were in caucus last night, and it is reported in Annapolis that an understanding was arrived at that Gov. Swann should be elected to the United States Senatorship, but the ballot was postponed until Monday night.

Fire Crackers.

Young America must hereafter be content to celebrate Christmas and Independence Day without the usual fusilade of Chinese crackers. The tariff bill introduced into the Senate contains a clause forbidding the importation of fire crackers. Mr. Fessenden inserted the prohibition because the Portland fire was caused by crackers.

Queer Memorial.

A memorial was presented in the House to-day, praying for an amendment to the Constitution to prohibit the election to office of any one who drinks alcoholic liquors.

Appropriation Bills.

The House held a business session to-day and considered the Legislative and Executive Appropriation bills. The struggle on the agricultural appropriation of eighty-five thousand dollars was resumed, and finally adopted. The appropriations to pay the salaries of officials in the United States Depositories at Pittsburgh, Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Louisville were agreed to, but no final vote was reached on the bill.

Against Contraction.

Some twenty memorials were presented to-day in the House from different portions of the West, protesting against any curtailment of National currency. They were all laid before the Banking Committee.

Tax on Tobacco.

Sixty manufacturers of tobacco in Ohio have petitioned the House to lighten the taxation on tobacco.

Special Dispatch to the Pittsburgh Commercial.

WASHINGTON, January 13, 1867.

Assessor in Cleveland District.

The President will send to morrow to the Senate the name of Lovett S. Morton, as Assessor of the 18th Ohio or Cleveland District.

River Surveys.

Major Gen. J. H. Wilson, who made the survey of the Rock Island and Illinois rivers, ordered by last Congress, has just completed his preliminary report, and laid it before the War Department. It will take two or three months to work up the maps and plans in detail.

Southern Branch Pacific Railroad.

The House Select Committee on the Pacific Railroad will soon report a bill to secure the speedy construction of the Southern branch of the Union Pacific railroad. It provides that when the commissioners appointed by law shall report the completion of twenty miles of said road, the Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe the payment of interest on bonds of said company of one thousand dollars at 6 per cent, payable semi-annually, to be issued as follows: Sixteen of said bonds per mile for that portion of said road which is embraced between its Northern point of commencement, wherever the same shall be located at or near Fort Riley, to its southern terminus or near Fort Smith, via the village of the Neosho, Grand and Arkansas rivers, not exceeding four hundred miles. The company is required to pay in a portion of its gross receipts each year to meet the interest thus guaranteed.

Nebraska.

The friends of the Nebraska bill are confident of its passage by the House and over the veto of the President.

Colorado.

Two hundred colored men of Colorado telegraphed to the Senate asking for the admission of Colorado with the suffrage amendments as passed the Senate.

Reinstated.

Lieutenant Commander Stillwell, of the Navy, has been reinstated, and is awaiting orders in the navy.

General Sherman in New Orleans.

A telegram from New Orleans announces the arrival of General Sherman there, and a contemplated new movement in Mexican affairs. Nothing is known of the statement in official circles, though General Sherman's arrival there is stated to be very probable.

Alabama Claims.

There is good reason to believe that a spicy correspondence is going on between Secretary Seward and Lord Stanley, on the question of arbitration on the Alabama claims.

WASHINGTON, January 13, 1867.

NEW PACIFIC RAILROAD PROJECT.

A strong effort is about to be made to secure the aid of Congress in constructing a Pacific Railroad from a point of the Gulf of Mexico by an air line route, only 1,268 miles long, to the Pacific Ocean. An association of capitalists has been organized, in connection with ex Gov. A. J. Hamilton, of Texas, and other Southern loyalists. They propose to introduce a bill at an early day to carry out their idea. These gentlemen claim, if annual Government expenditures along the line of their proposed route for military purposes are capitalized, and the bonds thus created shall be loaned to a Pacific Railroad Company as the work progresses, the arrangement will give the country the required road without a dollar of expense in addition to what must otherwise continue to be expended for a generation to come in giving military protection to the region through which the road is to pass.

SUPREME COURT DECISION.

The opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States to be delivered to-morrow, is based on the question presented in the cases ex-parte of Marr, of Louisiana, and Garland, of Arkansas, who having participated in the rebellion ask to be admitted at the bar of that tribunal, involving more particularly the constitutionality of the law extending to attorneys in the United States Courts, the provisions of the act of July, 1862, which requires the test oath of civil, military and naval officers with penalties of perjury.

IMPEACHMENT.

There is good authority for saying the House Judiciary Committee, after careful examination, has come to the conclusion that there is not sufficient ground upon which to base a bill of impeachment.

HIGHLY INTERESTING.

BOLD ROBBERY.

A daring robbery was committed yesterday in Exchange Place. A package containing over $10,000 in gold certificates and treasury notes was snatched from the porter of Martin, Maas & Co. No clue to the thief.

The alleged fugitive was intrusted with the preparation of the Company's pay rolls, and the frauds are said to have been committed by placing fictitious names on the laborers' roll.

RECONSTRUCTION.

THE TERRITORIAL BILL

Synopsis of Its Provisions.

New Governments Proposed for Alabama, Georgia, Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi North and South Carolina and Texas.

Special Dispatch to Pittsburgh Commercial.

WASHINGTON, January 12, 1867.

It has been determined to take up the reconstruction question in the House next week and dispose of it. Thad. Stevens returned to-day, and will urge early action upon it.

The House Committee on Territories to-day agreed to report a bill for new governments for the States of Alabama, Georgia, Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana, North and South Carolina, and Texas. It first declares void all laws made by the Governments in force in those States, and then proposes that all male persons above the age of twenty-one who can take the oath of loyalty shall be allowed to vote for delegates to the Convention. When the Convention meets, if it decides to accept the terms proposed by Congress, it is authorized to select what is called a Provisional Committee of five citizens, distinguished for their loyalty to the Union. This committee is to act as one of public safety until a Constitutional State Convention is formed, which they are authorized to inaugurate. The convention thus called, can then elect provisional State officers, and form a State Constitution irrevocable without the consent of Congress. Universal suffrage, prohibition of distinction on account of race or color in schools, repudiation of the rebel debt, and disfranchisement of all who aided the rebellion, are to be provided for in the State Constitution. If the State shall at any future time attempt to dissolve its relations with the Federal Government, its representation in Congress is to cease, and the latter is to do anything not inconsistent with the rules of civilized warfare to protect the loyal people. If Congress accepts the new Constitution, the State is to be entitled to representation.

The Committee will urge this bill as a substitute for that of Mr. Stevens's measure, heretofore published.

MEXICO.

Zacatecas Occupied by the Liberals.

Foreign Consuls Imprisoned by an Imperial General.

Courier from Francis Joseph to Maximilian.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 12.—Antonio Marcellas, late editor of a Mexican Liberal paper here, goes to Mexico to solicit from Juarez certain political concessions to parties in San Francisco. He retains a grant of land in Durango to form an American settlement.

The steamer Montana has arrived, with New York mails of December 21st. Private letters by her state that Zacatecas was occupied by the Liberals November 27th. Manzanilla was also occupied, and the report said that Colima was also taken.

Colima advices to December 24th, state that the Imperial forces were totally defeated by the Liberals near the city of Guadalajara, which was occupied by the latter under Gen. Parra.

On December 21, General Chacon, Imperial commander at Colima, levied a forced loan of $100,000, which was reduced to $20,000 and paid by six importing houses of that city. The merchants, three of whom were Consuls of Prussia, Hamburg and Bavaria, were taken to jail and informed that they would have to remain there until the amount required was forthcoming, and in the event of the city being evacuated, would be taken away.

The schooner Juanita left Manzanilla December 16 for Acapulco, with orders from the commander at Colima for the French to evacuate the former place.

TWO DAYS LATER.—The French transport Masine has arrived in search of provisions for the garrison of Acapulco, so it is doubted whether the French will allow the evacuation of Acapulco until their final departure from the ports of Mexico on the Pacific.

NEW ORLEANS, January 12.—A courier direct from Europe, via New York, left here to-day in the steamship Mexico for Vera Cruz. He bears a letter from Francis Joseph to Maximilian. It is surmised the letter relates to a reconciliation between them.

FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

A Test Case—Shipments of Treasure from Portland—Constitutional Amendment Passed by Nevada House.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 12.—In the United States District Court a test case was made in the trial of one Larry, Deputy Assessor, who refused to make returns to Assessor Bigler, of Sacramento. The indictment was found defective and quashed, but the District Attorney declared his purpose to frame an indictment that would hold, and prosecute every deputy who had failed to make returns to proper officers.

The steamer Pacific, from Portland, Oregon, brought $140,000 in treasure. During 1866 five million four hundred and twenty-three thousand dollars in treasure was shipped from Portland.

The Washington Territory Legislature does not want the military headquarters of the north transferred to Portland, and has passed a memorial to the War Department against it.

The lower House of the Nevada Legislature yesterday adopted the Constitutional Amendment by a strict party vote of 31 to 1.

Legal tenders are selling at 71½. The wheat market is inactive for want of tonnage. Wheat quotable at $1 82½ per 100 pounds. Flour—Extra, $6 50a6 62½; superfine, $5 25; Oregon Extra flour, $4 75a1 85.

Indian Depredations.

FORT LARAMIE, January 12.—A mail party from here to Fort Phil. Kearney, was attacked yesterday by about thirty Indians. The party escaped with the loss of their wagons and mules. Up to the 4th inst. no more Indian depredations occurred in the vicinity of Fort Phil. Kearney. Two companies of cavalry and four of infantry have been sent to Fort Reno, and will probably go on to Fort Phil. Kearney. Three companies of infantry were enrolled here. All the companies of the second infantry are concentrating here rapidly.

LITERARY.

Mr. George Lunt is writing another war history.

Mr. John G. Whittier has sent to press his new poem, "The Tent on the Beach."

Dr. O. W. Holmes, it is reported, is about to resign the Parkman professorship in Harvard College.

Miss Wetherill, author of "The Wide, Wide World," has in press "The House of Israel."

Mr. Ernest Renan is about to publish a second edition of the first volume of his Vie de Jesus, which he has revised and altered in a manner which makes it, it is said, more heterodox than ever.

A privately printed volume on ale, in prose and verse, contains a poem by Barry Gray, entitled "A Runlet of Ale," with numerous lithographic illustrations; an antiquarian, historical and literary dissertation upon ale, by John Savage.

The unknown author of the "Schonberg Cotta Family"—whose poems, "arranged by the author expressly for publication in this country," have just been issued by Mr. M. W. Dodd—has written a new tale for a London magazine.

Mr. Alexander H. Stephens is soon to publish a "History of the late War between the States, tracing its origin, causes and results," which will be comprised in one volume of 500 pages. Mr. Stephens, by the way, is the subject of a forthcoming "life," by Henry Cleveland, a Georgia editor.

The opening sentence of a review of Ecce Homo, in Le Correspondant, is so deliciously Frenchy that we cannot resist the temptation to transcribe it: "England lives entirely upon important ideas. These, originally derived from Germany, become clarified and rendered intelligible in France, and are finally accepted in England, or even promulgated there as new."

Mr. William H. Prescott's "Philip the Second"—of which an Italian translation, published at Venice and Turin, meets with high praise at the hands of reviewers—was left unfinished by the historian's death, while the materials he had gathered were not sufficient to complete the fourth volume. A completion, or rather, we believe, a complete history, by Mr. Charles Gayarre, a Louisianian of Spanish descent, is, together with other works by the same author, among the announcements.

An imitator of Mr. Carlyle in his historical style has sprung up in the person of Mr. Francis Espinasse, who has just published the first volume of the "Life and Times of Francois-Marie Arouet, calling himself Voltaire." Not having any of Mr. Carlyle's genius, nor any of his own, he has copied the faults and eccentricities of his master, and successfully imitated no one of his excellences.

FOREIGN ITEMS.

—In consequence of the spread of the cattle plague in Holland, the official Government journal says: More vigorous measures have become necessary for the repression of fraud on the frontiers of Eastern Flanders, and several other communes have been placed under the provisions of the laws of 7th of February, 1866.

—The death is announced of the Rev. John Hind, M. A., a distinguished mathematician, whose works on astronomy, algebra, &c., were for many years text books at Cambridge University. The deceased was second wrangler and second Smith's prizeman in 1815, and was for some years fellow and tutor of Sidney Sussex College.

The state of Count Bismarck's health, says a Berlin correspondent, whatever may be said to the contrary, occasions serious uneasiness. Our own information states that four medical men of the first eminence met in consultation at Berlin three days back. Were the malady not of a very grave character, such an appeal of the greatest medical celebrities of Berlin and Vienna would certainly not have been made.

Gambling continues to increase in Paris, and recent heavy losses and gains have been the subject of much conversation. Among the fortunate winners is Kalil Bey, who, on Saturday evening, gained, in all, a million of francs. Viscount D—— lost the same evening, 150,000f, which he paid immediately. Heaps of gold are on these occasions, laid down upon the table, and have a visible and sometimes remarkable effect both upon the players and spectators. The places of resort are in the vicinity of the Palais Royal, and are very likely to attract a visit from the police.

Rebels in South America.

A letter says:—It would seem that those rebels who have accepted positions in the Peruvian navy have not found them the "downy beds," they expected, as will be seen by the following: A week or more ago one of them—an engineer—asked a superior officer—a Peruvian—to throw off his uniform, and allow him to take satisfaction for some insult offered the rebel. The Peruvian promised to meet him on shore in the evening as he desired, in citizens clothes, which he accordingly did. The encounter is described as being comical in the extreme, as both of them were the veriest pigmies in stature, though the rebel, in strength, proved himself anything else for he gave the native a most thorough drubbing, which the latter did not resist to the desire of the rebel. A cowhiding succeeded, and the triumphant youth, next morning, found himself, upon attempting to emerge from his room in "durance vile," a guard having been stationed during the night at his door. He is not allowed any communication with the outside world. Pen and paper are refused him; and although his friends and compatriots are securing counsel for him in the approaching trial, it is likely to go hard with our young pugilist. Young Tucker, a son of the Admiral, and a Mr. Barclay of Baltimore have resigned in consequence of the difficulty. The position of the Admiral cannot be an enviable one. Apropos of him: The U. S. Consul went on board the "Independencia" for an official call the other day, and the old flag, which the Admiral was for four years fighting against, was hoisted and magnificently saluted. I fancy his personal comfort would be largely augmented if he was under it again.

SENATORIAL CONTEST.

"Inside View."

What was Done and How.

Subsequent Scenes.

Special Correspondence of the Pittsburgh Commercial.

HARRISBURG, January 11, 1867.

You ask me to describe what has occurred in Harrisburg since the meeting of the Legislature and which culminated in the caucus nomination for United States Senator of Mr. Cameron last night. To describe it, is impossible. Dickens, with all his ability to depict low life, could not describe the degradation of the scene, nor tell you of the mental and moral depravity of those who have figured. Warren, with his master stroke of "Gammon," could not portray the tortuous movement of the reckless politician who has triumphed. His path to office has not been, as other politicians, strewn with broken promises and violated pledges, but be paved his way upon a solid basis and moved to victory amid the plaudits of his hired adherents. From the instant that Mr. Stevens' adherents madly aided to break down Governor Curtin by aiding Mr. Cameron's friends in the organization of the House and the election of Speaker Glass, it was apparent to Curtin's friends that the responsibility of the election of Mr. Cameron must rest upon Stevens, as this move had been made under his direction, and when the fatal error was plainly seen in the rapidly advancing fortunes of Cameron, the Stevens men eagerly endeavored to undo what had been so stupidly done. They vainly endeavored to recover their lost ground, but the now known betrayal of their members in the House rendered this almost impossible. In haste, Mr. Stevens was called from Washington, and notwithstanding his letter of the day before, declaring that he would not come, on Tuesday he arrived. General Moorhead, from your district, also arrives, and as the avowed friend of Mr. Stevens and the bitter personal opponent of Mr. Cameron, and feeling that with him also will rest the responsibility of aiding to defeat the only man who could have beaten Mr. Cameron, goes to work to recover the lost ground. Hopes are now entertained that the combined voice of the potential counties of Allegheny and Lancaster will not be utterly disregarded in a Republican caucus. The known power of their vast majorities, and the sagacity of their leaders, gives encouragement to the belief that something can be done.

What does it all amount to? Mr. Stevens has an interview with his delegation; charges the members of the House with a bought betrayal and denounces them. Defiantly, in answer, they say, that "nobody knows it." The Old Commoner declares that "the boys in the street know it." He sends for a Senator from a south-eastern county, instructed for him, and tells him he is young, and has a character yet, and that he "ought to take it back to them." The youthful Senator, with education, a family name, and bright prospects, retires unimpressed by Mr. Stevens, and subsequently votes for Mr. Cameron. Mr. Stevens has an interview with Governor Curtin, deplores what his men have done, and urges the Governor to join him in a revolutionary movement. "Break up the Caucus;" "go to the people," cries the enraged old hero from Lancaster. The Governor calmly replies: "The condition of things may be new to you, sir; but everybody here has known it for a week, and I cannot aid in any movement which will break up the party. My name is with my friends, and I must abide the issue, whatever I may believe as to the means which have been employed to produce this result. The people have already elected enough members to elect me, and if they don't vote for me, their responsibility is to their constituents. I was done when I aided, with what humble powers I possess, to carry the State last fall in a canvass of unusual bitterness and requiring great exertions on my part." And so waste away Tuesday evening and Wednesday, Cameron's adherents still active, and defections in the Stevens and Curtin ranks still being made, and the means openly talked of on the streets and in the bar-rooms. "Bad! bad!" exclaims a Democratic member; "no show for us. Well! well! I'll vote once for Cowan, and then I'll go for Spinner, like the Republicans."

Wednesday night, Mr. Forney has arrived. He comes, he says, to protest against this great wrong. He will characterise it as it deserves in "his two newspapers, both daily." He has his adherents along. He has no members, therefore can't do much in the way of votes, but as the embodiment of two dailies his thunder is feared, as is supposed. He speaks of his stake in this matter, i. e., a vote on the Secretaryship, and takes credit to himself for his patriotism in opposing Mr. Cameron, who is now likely to be elected. Now, all go to work—Stevens, Forney, Moorhead, &c., &c. What does it all amount to against the almighty dollar which continues to circulate?

Thursday afternoon a caucus is held—a sort of a caucus within a caucus—Stevens, Forney, Curtin, and all the lesser lights talk, and men sit in that caucus as their devoted friends, who four hours afterwards vote for Cameron. Stevens continues to be revolutionary, and asks his friends to stay out of the caucus that evening. His two Senators alone obeyed him. Curtin is urged to join in the proposed uproar. As before, he smiles at the want of knowledge of the Senatorial aspirants around him, and tells them it is too late. The bargains are completed and the sale will be made.

The caucus meets at 7½ on Thursday evening. The vote is soon over; the scoundrels are impatient for their pay. A member from Philadelphia, who that morning had assured Curtin that he would obey his instructions and vote for him, votes for Cameron. The Delaware members vote for Cameron, with their instructions made only two days before to vote for Stevens, then for Curtin, and never for Cameron in their pockets. Betrayal is everywhere around. Men who had grown grey in respectability and honor, and in a life of professional toil, yielded to the "mammon of unrighteousness." Men young in life, with every professional prospect bright before them, went down under the wand of the enchanter. A Senator from the Northwest declared his determination to vote for Cameron, although he did not believe twenty of his constituents were for him. A member of the House from the same region was allowed to vote for Curtin, notwithstanding he had betrayed him in the organization. A member of the House, from a district adjoining yours on the north, betrayed his constituents and went for Cameron, although he had declared within a week that he owed his election to Curtin and Curtin's friends, and notwithstanding the fact that several of his personal and political friends were near him, beseeching him not to falsify his former life and commence a career of infamy.

Philadelphia and Allegheny seemed to be the most flagrantly betrayed of any. In your county, it was asserted and not denied that Mr. Cameron had scarcely any adherents, and of all the crowds that came from your city but one gentleman was here to urge the claims of Mr. Cameron. All the others were either for Curtin or Stevens. Your Mayor was here, warmly for Stevens. Other gentlemen of equal respectability were for Curtin, and all united in asserting that Mr. Cameron was not acceptable to the people of your grand old Republican county, with its swelling majority. It was of no avail. Four of your members went for Cameron.

The Philadelphians who were here seemed to regard the violation of instructions and the infamous conduct of their members as unparalleled, and their indignation broke forth in every assemblage in town. Men's names and amounts paid were spoken trumpet-tongued. Mock auctions were held in the Lochiel, Jones, and State Capitol Hotels, and members were auctioned off amid the cheers and plaudits of the crowd. The impromptu auctioneer would name his man, state his office, describe his district, specify his instructions, proclaim his violation of them, and all this in unvarnished vernacular, and then ask for bids, which were made, and would vary from a chew of tobacco to a kick a posteriori, and the poor devil would be knocked down, branded for life publicly as a man who had forfeited all claim to the consideration of honest men, and must go down to a life of infamy "unhonored and unsung"—and all this personal and political infamy, all this aggregation of personal corruption to accomplish the election of a worn out polluted political hack to the United States Senate.

Meantime, the Democrats are jubilant. Many of the leaders are here, and express their unqualified delight at the whole proceeding. One of them, a distinguished gentleman from the Northeast, declares that this "gives us" the Judge of the Supreme Court next fall, and the prestige of that election to commence the Presidential canvass. The gratification of the Democracy is evidently outspoken and unfeigned.

Governor Curtin's house is besieged with his personal and devoted friends. He is surrounded now by those who are and always will be for him. He has no patronage to dispense, no money to bestow—but see his friends! The Governor is cheerful, regrets that the wishes of the people have been frustrated, is grateful to his many real friends, and will seek retirement and repose amid the people from whom he has had so many evidences of confidence and regard. How proudly he looks, though worn and jaded with his ceaseless exertions during the rebellion, with a record pure, bright and unstained, and the prayers and blessings of the soldiers' widow and the soldiers' orphan, hourly ascending for him.

Cameron's friends! Where are they? They have vanished. By every train they leave. Sometimes under protection, lest the indignation of their constituents should be visited upon them physically now at once.

This morning Cameron is in the streets bowing to all alike, friend and foe. But few men, however, are seen near him. Few men dare be so seen. An ex Senator from Philadelphia is the only one apparently intimate. Cameron is asked if he does not fear Forney's denunciations. He forcibly replies: "I will see that Forney becomes my friend." A bold declaration, but after the history of the past who can doubt it.

Thus you have a meagre outline of events. Now comes the grave question, Is the Republican party able to bear all this? Can it be done and the organization survive? Will Mr. Stevens press his bill and have these things inquired into in Washington, or will the people not redress these wrongs at the polls. One or the other will be done. X.

The Senatorial Nomination—Corroborative Testimony as to How it was Accomplished—Crude Petroleum—Mail Arrangements—Praying for the President—Railroad Passes—Banking Privileges—Acts Approved and Signed.

Special Correspondence of the Pittsburgh Commercial.

HARRISBURG, January 11, 1867.

U. S. Senator.

The form of nominating Simon Cameron to the office of United States Senator was gone through with at 8 o'clock last evening, but every one hereabouts felt for several days previous to the canvass, that the result was a foregone conclusion. If he had needed more than forty six votes, they would have been forthcoming. The fatal errors of the whole business were made long before the day of nomination. The Senatorship was imprudently dragged into the contest for Speaker of the House Hon. Thad. Stevens was originally instrumental in taking the Lancaster county votes from Mr. Quay, and when too late sought to remedy the mistake. Chester county's delegates were lost with this fall. With Mr. Quay's defeat, the whole opposition element became disorganized, and the cry was, like that of the French retreating forces at Waterloo, sauve qui peut, which here was rendered, "Well, we may as well be in," meaning, of course, "to make to themselves friends of the Mammon of iniquity." I have seen letters to members from notoriously Curtin districts, urging them not to vote for Cameron. They would laugh about them, and say, "I was not instructed, and may do as I please." Only eleven members would pledge themselves to stand out, and prevent a nomination, seventeen being necessary. The remarks made at the informal caucus on Saturday afternoon by Hon. Thaddeus Stevens, John W. Forney, and others, showed there was no hope. At no time during the campaign, was Cameron's claims urged on any public grounds. His voters were always reticent, but immovable. They were at an early day, satisfied by considerations, too weighty for popular remonstrances.

Petroleum.

It has been understood here that a law would soon be introduced forbidding the use of crude oil for illuminating purposes. In anticipation of such proposed legislation, Mr. Quay, of Beaver, sent up a long printed petition, which set forth at length a dozen or so of arguments in favor of using crude oil as an illuminator. Chemists generally believe that unrefined petroleum is a highly explosive element. It seems, however, that the good people of Beaver think otherwise. They state in their remonstrance that such legislation, would only benefit refiners, and give them a monopoly of oil sales for illuminating purposes; that experience has shown crude petroleum to be as safe in a lamp as refined, and that explosive oil tests generally, are uncertain and unreliable. There could be no objection to giving the petitioners the privilege of blowing their own heads off, if such rashness would not endanger their neighbors.

Irregularities in the Mail.

Complaints are very frequent among Senators and Members of the House about the irregularities of the Western mails. Many subscribers to the COMMERCIAL are annoyed by the non-appearance of their paper. Your reporter has received but one newspaper package to his own address in a week. The fault is in the careless distribution of matter on the route between the Pittsburgh and Harrisburg post-offices. Nearly every day the Senate and House Postmaster's return many packages, which are distributed to, but not addressed to members. Distributing offices are just as likely to send here what doesn't belong here as they are to (and do) keep from us what so many are daily expecting to, and would receive if Uncle Sam's employees would be more careful.

Cameron's Kick Out.

Wine and whisky flowed freely in certain rooms of the Lochiel House last evening, and several members wore a battered air in the House this morning. One notoriously jolly fellow from an Eastern city created a good deal of amusement by his pantomimic efforts to catch the Speaker's eye, being too hoarse to speak above a whisper. Another member moved that the Door-keeper be requested to get his sick friend some liquor—ish.

Benediction for President Johnson.

The Rev. Mr. Kennedy, a member and minister who "does" our morning devotions, put up a special plea for President Johnson this morning—praying that he may be enlightened and reformed, but that if his course cannot be quickened, his influence for evil may be crippled, and that he may be banished from station and power. Rev. Kennedy, like all the "preacher element" here, is in favor of pure men, and therefore voted for Simon Cameron.

Passes.

Members of both Houses are flooded with letters soliciting passes for divers persons, their wives' friends and children. It is understood that for the year 1867, the Pennsylvania Road will grant passes to members only, and all applications thus far made from any quarter have remained unanswered. Members pray their constituents to relieve them from these importunities. The Dead-Heads are evidently in a precarious condition.

Banking Privileges.

The Governor recently vetoed several bills passed in forgetfulness of Section 24 of the Constitution "No Corporate body shall be hereafter created, renewed or extended, with banking or discounting privileges, without six months previous notice of the intended application for the same, in such manner as shall be prescribed by law." Bills have been introduced this session in violation of the above provision, which should be remembered more generally.

Acts Approved and Signed.

On the 10th inst., the Governor sent in a large number of acts of the last General Assembly, approved and signed. The list includes sixty-three silver and gold Mining Companies, two of which are located in Pittsburgh. Among the bills which have a local interest, I notice acts to incorporate the People's Line of Steamers on the Monongahela river; to extend the Erie and Allegheny Railroad line, (this road is intended to connect with the A. V. R. R.); to incorporate the borough of Mount Washington; to establish a ferry at Dabb's Run, Allegheny river; for the protection of shade trees in Sewickley; to incorporate the Pittsburgh, Allegheny and Spring Garden Railway Company; incorporating the Pittsburgh and Connellsville Mining and Manufacturing Railroad Company; incorporating the Savings Fire and Marine Insurance Company of Pittsburgh; providing an interpreter for Allegheny county courts; increasing the salary of the Assistant Warden of Allegheny county prison; to authorize a special tax in the borough of McKeesport, and to grade, curb and repave its streets.

The Roman Catholic Church in Peru.

The difficulty between the heads of the Church and Government in reference to the right of the Civil Government to interfere with the religious feasts of the Church, has been finally settled. The Church, of course, proving victorious, as might have been expected, they immediately commenced the interdicted missions or revivals that had been conceded by a special Bull from the Pope for the benefit of the Catholics of Peru, and opposed by the Government. For some years past many of the leading men in Peru, have been gradually inclining to religious toleration, being convinced that it would be an important step toward inducing a voluntary emigration of useful members of society, and at the same time contribute to the stoppage of that almost criminal importation of Chinese labor that has already begun to show its baneful effects upon the lower class. The clergy became alarmed and took effective steps to stop any such heretical proceeding. Hence these grand revivals, that have now been carried on for the past three months, have had the desired effect. The missionaries have preached thirty sermons in each of the parishes of Lima, and all good Catholics who have attended the course in their own parish, and have confessed and received absolution, are to receive 1,000 days indulgence and the Pope's benediction. During the whole time that these revivals have lasted, the churches have been crowded almost to suffocation, principally with the gentle sex. The missionaries belong to the order of Barefooted Monks, and have the reputation of being the best orators of the Church, and very justly so. I have had several opportunities during the last four months of hearing them, and must admit that their reputation is well deserved. Many of the principal foreigners resident here were nightly seen at the sermons.

Sharp Practice in California.

News came to San Francisco of the failure of a large banking and commission house in the Sandwich Islands having extensive relations in California. Two rival parties were eager instantly to get to Honolulu to save the pieces and reconstruct on the ruins. The only regular modes of conveyance were slow and uncertain sailing vessels. But the United steamer Vanderbilt was going in a day or two to carry Queen Emma home, and a representative of one of the parties had contrived to secure permission to go out in her. But the other side made such representations of the impropriety of a United States steamer taking mercantile passengers as induced the Admiral to recall the permission and forbid anybody's going in the Vanderbilt. So far good. but now the lawyer of the second party, representing the creditors, wanted to go farther and get carried on the steamer himself; it was a delicate matter, but diplomacy succeeded, and he shipped finally as captain's clerk, got rapidly to Honolulu, and was gobbling up the remains of the fallen house on shore, when the agent of the other parties, having taken a fast sailing vessel, appeared on the arena. Baffled on shore, the latter went aboard the Vanderbilt, and revealed the whole story. The old Admiral was irate at the way he and his ship had been used, and peremptorily ordered his captain's clerk aboard the vessel, and served notice on him that he could not resign his place, but must accompany the steamer to Aspinwall and Valparaiso, whither she would speedily sail. The story breaks off here; but the lawyer may safely be trusted, having cared for his clients, to take care of himself. He is a Springfield boy.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

The debate in the House of Representatives on postal matters brought out the statement from Kasson that it was the custom of stage drivers on the overland route when the paper mail was carried over it, to use the mail bags to fill up sloughs.

SECOND EDITION.

4 O'CLOCK A. M.

THIRTY-NINTH CONGRESS.

SECOND SESSION.

WASHINGTON, January 12, 1867.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Leave was given to the Committee of Ways and Means to sit during the session of the House.

Mr PAINE introduced a resolution declaring that the American Government ought to protect American industry, but if people are compelled to submit to free trade in products of agriculture, they ought to have at the same time free trade in products of manufactures. Referred to Ways and Means Committee.

After some unimportant business, the bill for the admission of Nebraska came up, but was postponed, on motion of Mr. GARFIELD, in favor of the joint resolution giving the twenty per cent. additional compensation to Government employees in Washington, which passed—93 against 42.

The House, in Committee of the Whole, considered the legislative appropriation bill. The amendment to reduce the appropriation of $80,000 for the purchase of Zedo failed. Without completing the bill the Committee rose, when

Mr. HILL introduced a bill extending the provisions of the bounty laws to soldiers who died or were disabled while on furlough by leave of a commanding officer, without fault of the soldier.

Mr. CLARK, of Ohio, introduced a bill to declare the effect of certain patents. Referred to the Land Committee.

Mr. UPSON introduced a bill authorizing the payment of the reward offered by the President for the capture of Jefferson Davis. Referred.

Mr. CLARK, of Kansas, introduced a bill to secure the speedy construction of the Union Pacific Railroad, Southern branch, and telegraph line, and to secure to the Government the use of the same for postal, military and other purposes.

The bill for the relief of James M. Bishop, of Quincy, Illinois, passed.

Adjourned.

From St Louis.

ST. LOUIS, January 12.—The rebel General Sterling Price and family arrived yesterday from Mexico.

The Democrat's St. Joseph special says, late advices from Denver report large numbers of buffalo going into Platte Valley from the South. As buffaloes never willingly travel northward in the dead of winter, the Denver News believes the Indians are behind them, with hostile intentions on the settlements along the Platte. All previous Indian raids in winter have been preceded by buffalo, and the News apprehends a recurrence of the Indian massacres of two years ago.

ST. LOUIS, January 13.—A company has been organized for bridging the Mississippi at this point.

Ten delegates from New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and Belt more are invited to attend a Convention here next month for the consideration of measures for the improvement of the Upper Mississippi river. Over seven hundred delegates will be invited from cities and towns on Ohio, Mississippi, Illinois, and the Missouri river valleys. The railroad fare and expenses of the delegates while here will be paid out of a fund raised here for that purpose.

Brutal Murder in Dayton, Ohio.

DAYTON, O., January 12.—Miss Christine Kitt, aged about eighteen years, living on Oak street, in this city, was brutally murdered yesterday afternoon, during the temporary absence of her mother, by some unknown person. Bloody tracks were found in the snow outside of the house, and marks of blood were also found upon the fence. A discharged pistol belonging to her brother, was found by her side, but there were cuts upon her head made by some sharp instrument, and the supposition is that in attempting to defend herself with the pistol from the brutal assault of a ruffian, she was killed by him, the pistol fired into the wound, and so placed as to raise the presumption of suicide. No clue to the perpetrator of this horrid deed has yet been obtained.

A Double Murder in Canada.

MONTREAL, January 12.—It is supposed a double murder has been committed in the county of Yamaska, Lower Canada. A man named Jutras and the wife of a man named Provencher died very suddenly, the latter two months ago and the former on the 31st of December, under circumstances which indicated poisoning, and which pointed to Provencher and the wife of Jutras as the guilty parties. Provencher and Mrs. Jutras, it is alleged, were on terms of suspicious intimacy, and they will be tried at the next criminal term for the joint murder of their respective spouses.

The End of a Long Feud.

LOUISVILLE, January 13.—The Journal to-morrow will contain substantially the following: Two families of Carter county, East Tennessee, have been waging a bloody war between each other for twenty years. During this time fourteen men belonging to these two families have lost their lives, and on the evening of the 5th inst., the vendetta came to a bloody end in the streets of Elizabethtown, Tenn., by the two sole surviving males of the Byrnes and Johnsons engaging in a personal altercation, which resulted fatally to both. This domestic war originated about a dozen fence rails.

From Nashville.

NASHVILLE, January 12.—The Chancery Court, Judge Campbell to-day decided that the bill of the Tennessee Legislature creating the Metropolitan Police force for Nashville is unconstitutional, on the ground that it was a partial law; that commissioners were not constitutional officers; that the law attempted to take from Nashville her franchises, which could not be done, and that law was irregularly passed, the amendments being acted upon without a quorum. The appeal to the Supreme Court was granted.

The Legislature will meet on Monday with little prospect of a quorum at once.

Fire at Willoughby O.

CLEVELAND, O., January 13.—There was a destructive fire at Willoughby, O., early this morning. The principal sufferers were W. F. Merriam dry goods; Vial & Holmes, grocery; Vial & Ferguson, hardware; R. W. Perkins, grocer; Yaxley & Abbott, stoves. The Post-office and Merchants' Union Express Office were also destroyed. Loss estimated at $30,000, partly insured.

Boiler Explosion.

ROCK ISLAND, ILL., January 12.—The boiler at Warren Mills in this city, exploded this morning, entirely destroying the machinery and engine room. The walls of all but the main building are leveled to the ground. The stock was badly damaged by steam and dust. The engineer and workmen escaped. The main building was blown into atoms.

Fire in Charleston.

CHARLESTON, S. C., January 13.—Riker's flour mill and granary, containing 10,000 bushels of grain and one hundred and fifty hogsheads of flour and other produce, were destroyed by fire this morning. Insured for $41,000, chiefly in Northern companies.

From Ottawa, C. W.

OTTAWA, January 13.—A telegraphic dispatch has been received by cable to the effect that the confederation delegates to England have decided by a majority to remove the capital of the confederation from Ottawa to Quebec.

The discount on American invoices for the evening week will be twenty-four per cent.

No Indictment Against New Orleans Rioters.

NEW ORLEANS, January 13.—The United States Grand Jury failed to find an indictment against any persons concerned in the July riots. P. H. Morgan, United States District Attorney, when the jury was empannelled, declined to apply the test oath to the jurors.

Destructive Fire in Janesville, Wis.

JANESVILLE, WIS., January 12.—There was a destructive fire this morning. The Hyatt House, one of the largest hotels, was consumed, together with a church, express office, stores, &c. Loss over $120 000. Insured $25,000.

SAYS that delectable sheet, the Richmond Times: "A Nantucket Yankee, who has drifted down the Gulf Stream to the coast of Texas, and there 'started' a 'nuespaper,' abuses us for expressing the apprehension that our old-fashioned Virginia hospitality will be frightened away by cooking ranges, wood saws, washing machines, gas stoves, codfish, pumpkin pies, smoked halibut and other New England inventions and viands." It then proceeds to relate this anecdote illustrative of "Puritan hospitality:"

"A Southern clergyman of great eminence was invited some weeks ago to the house of a lawyer of distinction in a Northern city. In the midst of an animated conversation with the family dinner was announced. 'My dear Mr. S,' said the hospitable lawyer, 'our dinner is ready and we must beg you to excuse us for a short time. Be good enough to glance at my library while we are dining.' The wife of the noble Yankee host was, however, so deeply interested in the eloquent discourse of the Southern clergyman, that she did not want to lose that intellectual treat, even while enjoying a more substantial repast. She therefore offered the following amendment to the proposition of her husband: 'Perhaps, Mr. S, you would prefer sitting by the fire in the dining room and continuing your interesting and edifying remarks while we are eating our dinner.' The clergyman, however, having the carnal weakness of his cloth for a good dinner, declined both of these hospitable invitations and returned to his hotel in a frame of mind not exactly seraphic."

Any one knows that this story is entirely false and manufactured by some one in the Times office. But it answers the purpose of that paper and its patrons.

The Gentile Merchants to Abandon Salt Lake City.

A report comes across the plains that Brigham Young has forced his followers to cease all trade with the Gentile merchants in Salt Lake City, and that, in consequence, the latter to the number of twenty-three have united in an agreement to shut up their shops and leave the Territory, on condition that Young secures them cost prices on their accounts against the Mormons, and 75 per cent. of the cost of their stocks of goods. Should this prove true, and the proposition be accepted, it would cause a great reduction in the strength and wealth of the anti-Mormon residents of the city and territory, though not of the most energetic and aggressive influences. The Gentile merchants have generally been neutrals, certainly not active in working against the church. Their retirement, though a temporary embarrassment, would not give Brigham Young and his party a much surer or much longer lease of their domination. An aristocracy like theirs is an impossibility in the midst of a democracy like ours. To dream of maintaining it is fanaticism; to fear its permanent supremacy is absurd cowardice. After the buffaloes and the Indians go, then will go Mormonism.

STILL AFTER THE PENNSYLVANIA ROAD.—Col. Page, the member of Select Council from the Fifth Ward, Philadelphia, offered the following relative to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company:

Resolved, by the Select and Common Councils, That the directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad are requested to furnish the Councils, without delay, the reasons for the increase of shares of stock; for borrowing more money; and to what extent the stock has been sold and the money borrowed, and to what purpose the money so obtained has been applied; also the reasons for limiting the dividends hereafter and declaring stock dividends; and also to furnish such further information as will enable a vote of the said city on her stock to be cast knowingly and understandingly at the meeting aforesaid. Adopted.

CARE AND CUSTODY OF THE INSANE.

Another State Hospital Recommended.

The memorial of the Trustees of the State Lunatic Hospital, referred to in our Harrisburg correspondence published yesterday, represents that the condition of the chronic insane in the different sections of the Commonwealth demands, and should receive the earnest and considerate attention of every citizen. Their number can only be ascertained by an approximate estimate. In the older and more thickly settled counties the number will be, of course, greater than in the newer districts, from the fact that all the causes of the disorder are there more fully developed, and from the gradual accumulation, during a period of years, of those who have either not had any treatment, or from the failure of that treatment to restore them to their sound state.

The whole number under the care of the public authorities of the different counties and townships may be set down at one thousand (not including the city of Philadelphia), and it may safely be stated that almost, if not quite, as many more will be found in the care of their relatives and friends. In addition to this number of those whose disease has been of long duration, and in whom the prospect of restoration is not considered favorable or even probable, there will occur each year a given number of recent cases, in the proportion of one to every eight hundred inhabitants. Of these, the larger proportion will be restored to sound minds, but a given number, ten in every hundred, will most probably continue more or less diseased during the remainder of their lives, and consequently will need custodial care and attention from the public authorities or their friends. But while there is this annual increase it may safely be estimated that a corresponding number of the chronic cases will die, so that, in reality, the number may not increase, though no diminution of the whole number can be expected.

In thirty-one counties of this State there are no arrangements for the care and custody of the insane, the whole duty devolving on the respective townships. In two instances special provision has been made by the townships for their own insane, with their other poor. In the remaining counties the accommodations vary very much, not only in their extent, but in their character and adaptation to the purpose designed. In nearly all, no matter what their extent, they are crowded, and the more calm and quiet are placed in rooms with the same. In very few of the county houses are the accommodations such as the character of the disease demands, and often they are such as to aggravate the misery and wretchedness of this unfortunate class. Too little attention is paid to a careful separation of the sexes, and not only do they mingle freely during the day, but they occupy adjoining or opposite rooms at night, and those who have lost all regard to self respect by reason of their disease are exposed to the gaze of the curious of either sex.

In by far the great majority of cases no attempt is made to carry out any system of treatment, medical or hygienic, for their restoration or the improvement of their condition. Very frequently recent cases are kept in close confinement, without any regular medical treatment, until the disorder has become fixed, and all hope of restoration is taken away. A mistaken idea of economy seems to have so taken possession of the minds of men who thus act as to have driven out, not only the ordinary principles of good management and common sense, which guide them in other matters, but also to have forced them to forget the golden rule of doing to others as they would have others do to them. The wards of the Western Pennsylvania Hospital for the Insane are now so much crowded that, when the additions to that building now in progress are completed, they will be filled with the number now under treatment, leaving very little additional accommodation for new and recently occurring cases.

The wards of the Pennsylvania State Lunatic Hospital are also nearly filled (those for the men are crowded), though no recent cases have yet been refused, nor will they be so long as it is possible to give them room; but in the course of a year or two, to judge from the experience of the last year, every available room will be occupied so as to require the removal of the chronic or the exclusion of the recent cases.

From these statements, and they are rather below than above the actual condition of affairs, it will be seen that the accommodations now provided are entirely insufficient, and some additional means must be furnished if it is desired to give to the large number of constantly occurring recent cases that medical treatment which is necessary to restore them to the enjoyment of sound mind, and prevent their becoming a burden on the community and a source of alarm and anxiety to their families and neighbors.

It is a fact, established by the records and the experience of every hospital for the insane in the United States, that the majority of the inmates of the institution come from the immediately adjacent districts, principally on account the facility of access and the diminished expense of conveying persons to the hospital, and it should follow as a necessary deduction, that every hospital should be so situated as to be readily accessible from all parts of the district it is designed to accommodate.

The expense of conveying a person to the hospital, and removing them particularly where a great distance has to be traveled, is a large item in their maintenance, and often equals almost the whole cost of medical treatment and clothing for three or six months.

Another matter, deserving serious consideration, is the risk to life in an excited person from the fatigue and exposure of travel, often acting very injuriously and depressing the vital powers to such an extent as seriously to endanger life.

The early treatment, of recent cases of mental disorder, as a matter of political economy, is one demanding special attention; the experience of all countries distinctly showing that at least two recent cases can be restored at the same expense as one chronic can be maintained for one year, and the addition to the producing and paying population materially relieves the burden of the community and enables it so much more readily to maintain those who are chargeable to it.

From the facts thus stated, of the great number of chronic insane in the Commonwealth, and the insufficient character of the accommodations provided for them, of the great number of recent cases constantly occurring, for which the means of treatment are daily becoming more restricted, from the crowded state of the hospitals already in operation, and which, before another can be built, will be filled to repletion, from the great economy of diminishing the number of chronic insane, by providing more abundant means for prompt treatment and restoration in the early stages of the disorder, and the bounden duty of the State to provide for those who cannot provide for themselves, and who are of all men most miserable, we would most respectfully urge the erection of another hospital for the insane in the central part of the State, convenient to a large town and readily accessible by railroad from all the counties of the central portion of the Commonwealth.

The organ of the Canadian government, the Minerve, intimates that Fenians hereafter arrested in attempting to invade Canada will experience the full severity of the law. The warning was unnecessary. The bubble is completely burst.

WE do get marvellously bright, suggestive ideas from children sometimes. The following, for instance, affords considerable material for adult reflection. An exchange says: Our little Lizzie wondered why Ma could buy such a beautiful silk ribbon with such a torn and dirty twenty-five cent bit.

A great many people seem to think an anecdote of a Chinese woman who committed suicide because her husband beat her for giving her father some money without his knowledge, evidence of the little value set by the Celestials on life; yet we read that a young married lady in Ohio hanged herself recently, because her husband scolded her for giving $16 in charity. There doesn't seem to be much difference.

Two American citizens of African descent had a difficulty the other day in Richmond. One struck the other with a shingle and alleged in defense, that the plaintiff put on airs because he belonged to the "old issue"—that is, that he received his freedom before the emancipation proclamation went into effect. This the "new issue" couldn't stand, and struck him. We suppose they must be called the "gold" and "greenback" niggers to distinguish them. Where shall we not find some idea of aristocracy?

THE amount of land to be purchased in the New York City Hall Park, for Government uses, is 65 259 feet, at an average of $8 50 a foot. This would be remarkably, indeed, dirt cheap, were we not to take into consideration the amount of benefit the city of New York will derive from the change of location in their postoffice, which will then be in an accessible situation, instead of stuck away down town in a back street. Moreover, it will be a public ornamental edifice to be proud of.

THIRTY-FOUR splendid thoroughbred horses were lately embarked on the steamship Helvetia for exportation from England to Australia. The vessel encountered a tremendous storm on the second day of her voyage, which lasted two weeks. Every one of the poor animals died of sickness and exhaustion or was killed in frantic struggles to escape. William Hays, the faithful groom of a Mr. Cameron, for whom they were being exported, and who was in charge of the horses, describes the scene of suffering and death as truly heart-rending—or in his broad English dialect, "Hit halmost broke my 'art, sir!"

THERE was a sociable and re-union the other evening at a house in Richmond, Va. The local of the Enquirer was there. After complimenting his host and the beverages, he discourses "thusly" of several beautiful belles, who specially attracted his observation. Says he:

Miss M. McK., attired in white with a flowing train, was decidedly a beauty, and attracted much attention; as did also Miss R. T. and Miss M. T., sisters, who were very fastidiously attired in white; Miss M. B., dressed in black; Miss R., in white with pink trimmings; Miss M. T., in white adorned with flowers; Miss D. and Miss B., in colors; Miss F. A. and the two Misses Mc——.

Here he appears to have suddenly lost all power of language, and breaks off with an abrupt and singular dash, as if either the belles or the bourbon had fatally paralyzed his pen.

AN irrepressible fool, who might certainly be brayed in a mortar without losing a grain of his folly, is local editor of the Greenville, Ala., Southern News. He has, we perceive, gone through the mill of the war, and has not had enough of fighting, or pretending to fight, even yet. A lady of his acquaintance failed to recognize him on the street, whereupon he pens the subjoined asinine item:

"We would respectfully suggest to the young lady whom we met the other day on the sidewalk of the public street, and who failed to return our salute, that while we feel no resentment toward a lady, we are very capable of feeling it toward a brother, and particularly toward a sweetheart, who may champion her cause. We did not think the omission inadvertant, but intentional. If she can recognize her identity, we would be most happy to receive her champion, in any way his peculiar taste may indicate, from a straight out and out fisticuff, to 'pistols and coffee for two.'"

Such a chivalric idiot as this ought be taken up and spanked with a shingle. It is absolutely ridiculous to treat them as men.

A Curious Reminiscence.

A correspondent of a Swiss paper gives the text of a curious letter, which was recently found in the Department of Foreign Affairs at Paris. It is from the first Napoleon:

PARIS, 19 January, 1810.

"To M. de Champagny, Duke de Cadore, Minister of Foreign Affairs at Paris:

"Monsieur, le duc de Cadore, you will have to see the American Minister. It is in the last degree absurd that he should write such notes that nobody can understand a single word. I prefer that he should write in English, but more explicitly and so as to be understood. How can he be content to write four lines about a matter of such importance. Tell the Secretary what he is, and that he ought to change him. Send, by a special courier, a dispatch in cipher to America to let that government know that it is not represented here; that the minister does not understand French; that he is a morose fellow, with whom nobody cares to come in contact; and that every obstacle will disappear, if we can have some one sent out who can make himself understood. Write in detail on this subject. Let me know the effect produced in America by the letter of Altenburg; what has been done, and what it is proposed to do. Write to America in such a way that the President may understand what kind of a fool has been sent here.

"NAPOLEON."

The minister, about whom Napoleon expressed himself in such positive terms, was Mr. John Armstrong, who was afterwards Secretary of War.

CITY MATTERS.

A Good Joke and its Fortunate Results.

One evening last week as two young men who reside in Peebles township were returning to their homes in a carriage from this city, they overtook a woman who was walking along the road carrying a large basket. As she appeared to be fatigued the young man courteously invited her to take a seat in the carriage, and drove her to the six Mile Ferry, on the Monongahela river, in the neighborhood of which she said she lived. Upon leaving her at the ferry the young men proceeded to their home, where they found a brother-in-law, a resident of Tarentum, who informed them that he was in search of a female servant who had left his house that morning, taking with her his wife's furs, and other valuable articles. From the description given of the girl the young men had no difficulty in identifying her as the person they had gone out of their way several miles to oblige. Their story was soon related and early the next morning the ferry was visited, when it was ascertained that the woman had not succeeded in crossing the river at that point, but had walked back to this city, crossed the Monongahela bridge and proceeded up the other side of the river to her home opposite the ferry. The young men immediately started in pursuit of her, and upon their arrival at the house discovered the object of their search snugly ensconced in bed, having arrived home a short time before her pursuers. The basket which she had carried with her was examined, and the missing articles found therein. The girl plead with the young men not to arrest her, which they finally consented not to do but whether her importunities or a desire to escape the ridicule they feared would attach to their act of gallantry had the most effect upon them is not known. They, however, shortly afterwards delivered the basket and contents to the Tarentum gentleman who left for his home, apparently satisfied that he had recovered his property. An effort was made to suppress the facts in the case, but they finally leaked out, and were the cause of considerable merriment to the friends of the young men.

IMPOSTER ARRESTED.—Officers Wilson and McMullin, of the special police force, arrested a man on Saturday afternoon, on Wylie street, who had been going from door to door, representing himself as poor, and asking for money or bread. His actions had been watched by the officers, who discovered that when he would receive bread or victuals at any house, he would go to an alley and throw it away. He was arrested and taken to the lock-up where he yet remains. He pretends to be dumb and has not spoken a word since he was arrested, although the officers overheard him in conversation a short time before they took him in custody. He had in his possession about seventy five cents in change, which he had collected.

REV. W. B. WATKINS'S LECTURE.—By request of a number of our citizens, Rev. Mr. Watkins will repeat his highly interesting lecture entitled "The Use, Abuse and Beauty of English Words," at the Trinity M. E. Church, in the Ninth ward, (corner Baldwin and Smallman streets) this evening. This lecture has been delivered a number of times we believe, and is said to be a master piece in the treatment of a subject of great beauty in itself. Tickets, 50 cents, to be had at the door.

CLOSING OF THE ORPHANS' FAIR.—The Orphans' Fair, which has been a decided success, closed on Saturday night, and everything unsold was disposed of at auction. The pair of beautiful gold-plated candle-sticks, to be presented to the clergyman receiving the highest number of votes, was awarded to Father Kerr, of Sharpsburg. The result of the drawing of the gold watch will be announced to-day.

A PROPERTY WORTH HAVING.—A very fine property is advertised in our columns—elegant residence, with all modern improvements, tenant house, fine grounds, situated on the Pennsylvania Railroad, not over three or four minutes' walk from station, six miles out. This property will soon be caught up, and we advise purchasers to apply soon at 119 First street.

NEW STEAMER.—The Vigilant Fire Company are having a new steamer built at the Amoskeag Works, New Hampshire, which will be somewhat lighter than the present one. The old steamer will be taken in part payment by the builders.

Public Amusements.

OPERA HOUSE.—The truly admirable actor, Mr. E. L. Davenport, will commence an engagement at the Opera House this evening. He will appear as "St. Marc," in the exceedingly interesting drama entitled "The Soldier of Fortune," in which he made a strong impression during his last engagement. Mr. Davenport will be admirably supported by the stock company, and those who desire to see a good play well performed should secure seats during the day.

THEATER.—Miss Annie Levering is announced for a second week, and will appear in another sensation drama, with the cheerful title of "The Dance of Death." The beautiful ballet troupe will also appear in this play, and will give two ballets. The entertainments here are very attractive, and the management seem determined not only to deserve but win success.

GERMAN THEATER.—The managers of the German Theatrical Company, at the Academy of Music, announce an engagement with the distinguished tragedian, Mr. O. Heym, Director of the New York Stadt Theater. Mr. Heym, who has an excellent reputation, will make his appearance this evening, selecting Hamlet for his debut. He will receive good support from the company, and a fine performance is anticipated.

VARIETIES.—William McFarland, formerly manager of the theater here, made quite a hit as "Nick of the Woods" at Trimble's Varieties, Saturday evening, which impersonation he will repeat to-night. Miss Kate Partington, danseuse and comedienne, will make her first appearance at this house to-night.

MASONIC HALL.—Father Kemp's Old Folks, with the delightful songstress, Mrs. Emma Nichols, will commence a series of their peculiar concerts at Masonic Hall to-night. Father Kemp's troupe has not visited this city for six years, yet the pleasure afforded by them when last here yet lingers in our memory.

The Daily Commercial

MONDAY, JANUARY 14, 1867.

OUR Washington special gives the outlines of a new reconstruction bill, which the Committee on Territories in the House of Representatives will report in the place of Mr. STEVENS's bill. It reduces to a Territorial condition all the seceding States but Virginia, (which may have been accidentally omitted from the list in reporting,) and provides for their reorganization on the basis of loyalty. As a measure going to the root of the matter, it is of transcendent importance.

ALL the reports from Mexico are to the effect that the Liberalists are making excellent headway against every phase of the MAXIMILIAN concern. It is about time to hear that the victorious party have commenced quarreling among themselves.

WASHINGTON reports concur in saying that the impeachment project is growing weaker every day, and that there is little likelihood that it will be seriously pressed as a party measure. One of the strongest objections arises from its probable effect on the business of the country.

"WE, THE PEOPLE."

There are no superfluous words in the Federal Constitution, although even yet the depth of the meaning of the entire instrument has not been developed. The three words with which it commences, although much discussed and elaborated, are not yet thoroughly understood and appreciated. They assert the place where, or rather the persons in whom, sovereignty resides—"the people." The great cardinal principle underlying the entire framework of American government, is that the source of all power is "the people," that by "the people" are Constitutions made and laws enacted, and that by "the people" are they construed and enforced. These powers, it is true, are generally delegated by the people to Congress and the President to enact laws, to the Courts to construe them. Yet occasionally there are, and always will be, questions about the construction of which the Courts need not be troubled.

From the days of Calhoun until 1860 the question of secession was much discussed in our politics, and at the latter date those who asserted the right challenged those who denied it to a combat of arms, and although President BUCHANAN and his Cabinet Ministers exhausted argument to prove that neither was altogether right nor either altogether wrong—that while a State might have no right to secede, yet it did secede, there was no power any where to coerce it, "the people" formed the issue of war, and after a protracted and bloody struggle, rendered final judgment against the presumed right. Therefore, the power by which the Constitution was made, has after much tribulation most solemnly determined that the right of secession is not recognized by the organic law, and has declared the power of the Government to coerce a delinquent State. Upon that point a terrible precedent has been established, and it seems to be a question of more than ordinary interest to determine how far such precedents are to control the actions of the various branches of the Government.

Suppose a case comes before the United States Supreme Court, involving this once asserted right of secession, will the Justices of the Court be bound by the precedent established by the people, or may they disregard it and discuss the question as though it had never been determined? Without hesitation we say that the judgment of the people is the law of the land, and cannot be disregarded without perfidy and guilt. "The people" were in earnest when they established that precedent; they were giving their sons and brothers and fathers by the hundreds of thousands, and their treasure without limit, and were taxing themselves to an extent never before known in the history of the world; who will contend now that the precedent of the sovereign is not binding upon the sovereign's servant?

But this question of secession is not the only one upon which "the people" have established a precedent. Without a written law they decreed the overthrow of slavery, but afterwards gave form to their decree and made it part of the organic law. During the war they also decreed that none but loyal men should have a voice in the Government, which none but loyal men fought and died to save; and since the rebels surrendered, the faithlessness of a man who was elevated to the highest office in the land by the votes of loyal men alone, by his wanton disregard for the will of the people, has occasioned the people to reassert at the ballot-box the judgments they pronounced in the field with artillery, musketry and sabre-stroke.

Notwithstanding this, it is already asserted that when these questions come before the Supreme Court, the judgments of the people are to be overthrown, and the issues determined by the dead precedents of Courts to be found in the musty volumes of earlier ages. Judges as well as Presidents must remember that the voice of the American people, proclaimed as it was during the years of bloody war just closed, is the only perfect rule by which to administer the powers of the Government. The ideas thrown up by the tribulations of war came from the hearts of the people, and are not to be measured by long since forgotten precedents pronounced by judges in times of profound tranquility. We are many years further ahead now than we would have been had we had no war. Our minds are enlarged and our ideas greatly advanced. We know more of the power of our Government, of the depth of the attachment of the people for it, than we did before, and Judges and Presidents must throw themselves abreast of the people in this race of progress. We must have no backward steps taken. Upon the part of the people none will be taken; there is as much resoluteness to-day about preserving the fruits of our victory over treason and rebellion, as there was in achieving the victory itself. The servants of the people must beware that they do not prove faithless. The President, unfortunately for himself, set at defiance the will of the people, and there is not a truly loyal man in the land who would exchange places with him. Other public servants, with his lamentable example before them, may, with moderate honesty, even shun the breakers upon which he was wrecked. "We, the people," are the sovereign, and what the sovereign declares, the public servant is bound to respect.

THE ORGANIZER AND THE IRISH REPUBLIC.

A few months ago the great organ and organizer was dodging and flying from English detectives. Now he is in the same sort of uncomfortable activity, to evade the irate Irish of New York. When he reached New York, after his hair-breadth escapes with his head from British custody, he was hailed as both martyr and champion of the cause. Now he is said to be shrinking from the equally clamorous recognitions of his Irish friends in the great city. Then they took him to their bosoms and gave him money out of their pockets; now there is never a shillalah that would not be glad of a blow at his pate. Alas! the proverbial ingratitude of republics!

STEPHENS is pronounced a humbug and a cheat by his former admirers, because he did nothing effectively for Ireland, but raise money from Irish laborers and servant girls. If they will take time to consider the case, the question may properly arise in their minds, "Has he not done as much as the rest of the Centers?" And perhaps, a further practical question might arise—it certainly would in the American mind—whether the entire scheme is not totally impracticable in itself, and selfish and mercenary in its present hands.

The great power to which its friends are accustomed to defer—the Roman Catholic Church—has pronounced against the organization which has the scheme in charge. In this we are bound to believe the church authorities sincere, though we cannot account for the disregard of it, by the members of that communion. In Ireland itself, the Fenian project, as it is called, is as strenuously opposed by a large proportion of the people, as it is by the English. Recently, we have seen the feeling, between the two sects of the Irish people, spoken of as a desire to "get at" each other. What this means, in Irish history, every body knows.

Now that the great organizer has gone under, his some time coadjutors, lately his competitors, may perhaps take the same course, leaving the great mass of their adherents, with the worth of their lost money, in experience and wit. If half the money spent on absurd schemes of violent revolution, had been employed on free schools and good newspapers in that country, the interests and happiness of the Irish people would be at a much more advanced point than they now are. Shooting and rising have been too prominent in the prescriptions of demagogues, for the ills of poor Erin. It is the celebrated shooting of the "young idea," under the schoolmaster's care, that Ireland most needs; and the hereditary talk about "risings," for the cause of their grievances, would be superseded by the raising that free schools and an enlightened press would effect.

THE PRESS COMPLICATIONS—THE SETTLEMENT.

Some of our cotemporaries, we think, are disposed to take a wrong view of the recent Western and New York Associated Press complications, and their more recent adjustment. The fact is, everything essential which Messrs. HALSTEAD and WHITE originally asked for, and the denial of which resulted in an arrangement with Mr. CRAIG, has been gained by the late adjustment, a fact which, we think, fully vindicates the action of the Committee named. In our judgment, what has been gained is richly worth all that it has cost, and it is not probable that the victory could have been achieved in any other way. Mr. HALSTEAD states the terms of the agreement as follows:

The points of agreement between the Western and New York Associated Press, concerning Western interests, are that the New York Association evacuate our territory, extending from Pittsburgh to Omaha; that we are to distribute the news to the Southwestern and Northwestern Newspaper Associations, and within the boundaries of the Western Press Association we are to collect news, and in every respect to control it. This gives us complete command of the situation throughout the Mississippi Valley and the lake country, from the Atlantic to Memphis, to St. Paul and Milwaukee, and from Cleveland to the Upper Missouri.

The New York papers will take our news at Cleveland, having an agent there, and we will receive their news in New York, having an agent in their office, and we will pay them $8,000 per year bonus for the superior commercial value of their news in exchange. In addition we pay twenty-two per cent. of the cost of the dispatches by the Atlantic Cable and twenty per cent. of the tolls on the California dispatches. Persons having information on this subject well know that these are decidedly advantageous terms for the Western Press.

We understand that under this arrangement the day report will be transmitted via Buffalo, and the night report via Pittsburgh, to be distributed from Cleveland to all the points in the West. For our part we think the gentlemen who have labored so long and successfully to achieve this result are entitled to the warmest thanks of the Press, and we think on reflection this view of the case will be generally concurred in.

ALL PURE.

The Legislative committee which the friends of Mr. CAMERON raised ostensibly to investigate the charges of corruption which were in every man's mouth, but in reality, as some are so uncharitable as to believe, to suppress the truth, have reported that they have been unable to ascertain that the aforesaid charges have any foundation in truth. It is said that inspectors of customs in the sea board cities, when examining a vessel laden with contraband goods, whose owners have previously taken the precaution to see the aforesaid inspectors, have a way, when looking through hatches, of shutting both eyes, and after thus taking a lengthened observation, declaring that they can "see nothing wrong." We don't say that our committee are any better or any worse than the inspectors who are thus conveniently blind, we have nothing to say about that now. No doubt they have faithfully performed the duty for which they were appointed, and it is hardly to be questioned that for a long time to come they will be regarded as a truly model committee—in their own way.

COAL AND THE TARIFF.

A few years ago the producers or consumers of coal mined west of the Allegheny Mountains, would have felt no interest in the question of the duties on coal, but now it is a subject of very considerable importance to many of them. An inadequate protection would be the means of driving our bituminous gas coals more or less out of the Eastern seaboard markets, and would cause serious interference with the trade at New Orleans and elsewhere on the Southern coasts. Not only this—the coal trade of the lakes would find a ruinous competition in all its present markets.

The reason why coal needs protection, is not that the article in the bowels of the earth is worth more here than it is in England or Nova Scotia, but it is because men are of more value, and the laborer who digs it, and the laborer who grows food for the digger must be better paid. Coal is mined and delivered on shipboard at Pictou Mines, Nova Scotia, for about 80 cents per ton, and at Sydney, Cape Breton, its cost is even less. Miners earn $1 25 per day besides house and fuel, and from this is deducted charges for schools, medical attendance, &c. Laborers get from 70 to 75 cents per day. The coal vein at Picton, is 23 feet thick, of this, 13 feet is worked as the choice coal for shipment and the rest is used for making heat and steam. Ten other veins have been discovered by shafts. The mines of Nova Scotia and the Island of Cape Breton belong to the British Government and are leased for a royalty to the companies working them.

A ton of coal beneath the soil of Ohio or Southern Illinois is worthless if left there. Bring it to the consumer, and it will have added to the individual wealth of the farmer, the digger, the transporter, &c., to the amount of profit each shall realize in the process, and to the wealth of the country, just the difference between what it sells for and the actual consumption of food in producing it. If you cause it to be left in the ground by substituting a ton of British coal from the Pictou mines. You not only take the bread from the mouth of the American laborer to give it to the foreigner, but you make a direct contribution to the extent of the royalty, to the coffers of a foreign government.

From what we have said of the cost of Nova Scotia coal on ship board, the shippers to our lake and seacoast markets will see the importance of giving the subject prompt attention. By the compromise tariff of 1842, the duty on coal was $1 75 per ton. The British free trade tariff of 1846 reduced it to 30 per cent. ad valorem. In 1861 bituminous coal was $1 00—all other coals 50 cents—and 10 per cent. was added to this rate by the amendatory Act of July, 1862.

Mr. Commissioner WELLS recommends that on all cannel and bituminous mined and imported beyond thirty degrees of longitude east of Washington, the rate shall be $1 50. All bituminous coal mined and imported from any place not more than thirty degrees of longitude east of Washington, fifty cents per ton. "Anthracite and other coals not herein otherwise provided for, $1 50 per ton."

The reader will at once be exercised to know why it is proposed to make coal which crosses the Atlantic pay a fair and proper increased rate of duty, and admit that from the British Provinces, on this side, at less than half the present rates. The reason is found in the fact that certain New England capitalists are interested in the Nova Scotia coal mines; and further, that certain Boston gas companies and New England manufacturers want, as usual, an advantage over the rest of the country. They are ready to undermine any great principle if they can fill their pockets from the pilfered foundation stones. Mr. WELLS has probably been the victim in this of some of his free trade companions on his tour of exploration.

The last clause which seems so fully to recognize the need of increased protection, as a principle, by adding 200 per cent. to the present rate on "anthracite," is simply ridiculous, in view of the fact that anthracite has no competitor of its own nature. The protection it needs is against the bituminous coal of the British Provinces.

INDIANA UNITED STATES SENATOR.

The selection of Governor MORTON to be United States Senator from Indiana, will cause rejoicing among loyal men throughout the Union. Governor MORTON's fame, by reason of great services during the war and his eminent abitities as a statesman, is already National. His presence in the United Senate will give increased assurance that the ideas involved in the war will receive no detriment from the action of that body.

A FREE RAILROAD LAW—such as has been already shadowed forth as likely to meet the views of all parties to the late controversies—will but rivet upon the Commonwealth the chains in which the existing monopoly has already bound her. The idea of taking the subject out of the control of the Legislature, and putting it into the hands of a board who shall decide where roads may be made by new parties and where not, at a time when the board will most surely be the appointee of the great monopoly, is a scheme worthy of that delectable institution.

OUR Harrisburg correspondence, this morning, will acquaint the reader with what is going on at the State Capital, and enable the public to obtain an inside view of the Senatorial canvass, now as good as closed.

ON the third page of the COMMERCIAL, to-day, we make a permanent record of what must be regarded as an interesting passage in the political history of the State.

Another Historical Doubt.

We gave a description the other day of the ceremony of replacing the head, or rather face, of the famous Cardinal Richelieu in his tomb at the Sorbonne. For the daintily embalmed, lace enveloped body, search would be in vain. According to the Chronicler d' Etoile, this body, which bore jewels, and valuable stuffs, and precious spices to an enormous amount, was tossed into the common sewer behind the Palais de Quatre Nations, for all that, along with that of Cardinal Mazarin; and for a long time, so it is said by historians, could the gold tissue which adorned the priestly garments be seen through the mass of filth amid which the bodies were gradually sinking, until at length one fine day the Tower was found to be choked up, workmen were sent down, and amid a heap of rags and tinsel were found the bones of the two greatest statesmen by whom the affairs of France had ever been governed. The chronicle says nothing whatever of the head, does not even mention that it was missing, but merely says that the whole mass of filth and corruption was thrown back into the sewer to drift out into the Seine. Merimee is, by the way, possessed of one head of Cardinal Richelieu, and exhibits the most undeniable certificates of its identity. There is, therefore, strong reason to doubt whether the head, thus reinterred with so much pomp and ceremony, is the real head after all. However, one more historical doubt is provided for unlimited discussion.

Eugenie in Tears.

It is matter of journal gossip that the desire of the Empress Eugenie to go to Rome amounts to actual mania. She is not content now to visit the Pope in the character of a pilgrim, but she wants to go in grand Imperial state. She regularly attends the Councils of Ministers, and at the last one, held at Compeigne, which is said to have been an unusually stormy one, she exclaimed, gazing around at the disapproving faces that met her on every side, "And who is it opposes me?" "All, without exception," was the reply from the lips of Fould, who, as being the Minister of Finance, may be supposed to have been at the moment sensible of one objection in particular likely to have escaped the other ministers. To this remark but one course was left open, and that was one adopted by most ladies in the position of her Majesty. She burst into tears and withdrew in anger.

Napoleon's Declining Health.

The Emperor Napoleon is undoubtedly growing more and more morally indolent every day, if we are to believe what correspondents write. They declare that his mind, over-excited and over worked, is little calculated to bear with the disappointment occasioned by the failure of the Mexican expedition. Always of a taciturn and silent habit, he was once thought to think the more because he spoke but little. Of late, however, it has been perceived more than once that his thoughts are wandering, even when the subject under discussion may be full of interest; and it has become evident to all that he is suffering from over-exertion of the brain, brought on by the incessant anxiety which during the last year he has been made to undergo.

New Orleans Riot Investigation.

The testimony taken by the Congressional Committee, whose labors lasted ten days, is very voluminous, and is being put in type at Washington as fast as possible. One hundred and seventy witnesses were examined, including all the leading characters that could be reached, and their evidence is said to establish beyond dispute that the slaughter of July was pre-arranged Gen. Sheridan's testimony takes a wide range, and is very full. The report of the Committee will be a very important document, and having direct bearing on the action of Congress generally, concerning reconstruction.

THE Round Table does not seem to think much of the great yacht race across the Atlantic, and is of opinion that a great deal of unnecessary and undeserved fuss has been made about it by the press. It goes on to say: "Your tarry-handed fisherman who has spent weeks and weeks on the 'Banks' at mid winter in a cock boat a quarter of the size of the Henrietta, manned by an eighth of her crew, and utterly deficient in her safeguards or her luxuries, does not, of course, see the thing in the same light that enthusiastic journalists do. He will tell you that at this season heavy winds blow almost invariably and persistently from the westward, and that if there is any danger at all in trying to cross the sea in a staunch schooner well handled, there is less at this season than at any other. Indeed, so far as his experience goes, he will assure you that, once clear of our own coast, the great difficulty at this time of year is not so much to get to the coast of Ireland as to keep yourself from being blown thither whether you will or no. In proof of which, if you will make it worth his while in an humble way, he will venture to put you across the herring pond next December in his little Maria or Sarah Ann, as the case may be."

A GOOD story is told of the wife of a prominent State Minister of France. She had a great passion for speculation, and had somehow or other incurred the enmity of a distinguished ex-minister. By a diplomatic manœuver he induced her to invest every franc she could lay her hands on in the Mexican loan. When the inevitable crash he had forseen finally came the lady woke up one morning to find herself ruined, and her husband involved inextricably in the disaster. Their establishment in the gay capital had to be broken up, and the lady herself was obliged to withdraw at the very height of the season to the dismal solitude of a chateau in the country. Only a young, gay and beautiful woman, a petted leader of fashion, can understand the frightful nature of such an expiation.

FORTY thousand dollars damages against a railroad company would be an astounding kind of verdict to the managers of our monopolies here, and it would be still more astonishing to the public to hear that such a verdict was taken by consent. A Mr. and Mrs. Drew were killed in a fatal accident on the London and Brighton Railway, in England, and the action was brought to recover damages sustained by the five children in the loss of their parents. When the case came on, counsel for plaintiffs said that an arrangement had been made that a verdict should be taken in the first case, founded upon the death of Mr. Drew, for the sum of £7,500; and in the second case, the death of Mrs. Drew, the verdict would be for £500. It was also arranged that the £8,000 should be equally divided among the children of the deceased.

THE Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, in his lecture on "Universal Suffrage," gives the following, among other reasons, for extending the franchise to women: "God, when He made women, made her to be a mother, and necessarily a school mistress, and therefore a legislator: and consequently she ought to be such; with a mother's foresight, and a mother's love, laboring only for the future welfare of her own children, knowing what was most needed, she would be the one to exercise law to meet the wants of the people."

THE Methodists probably have among them the most liberal givers of munificent donations to their particular cause of any religious denomination in the world. In the United States alone the Centenary collection now foots up over $3,800,000, and it is not all yet in. It will undoubtedly reach $4,000,000. Of this sum Daniel Drew, of New York, gave $500,000; Mr. Baldwin, of Ohio $100,000; Mr. Rich, of Boston, $75,000, and many others from $20,000 to $50,000 each.

THE courtesy of Parisian critics to authors and actors is remarkable, but then the French are the most polished people in the world, we know. Victor Sardou is just now the most popular of dramatists, yet this is the way a newspaper characterizes his last comedy: "The first and second acts are tediously long; the third disgustingly indelicate; the fourth dull, and the fifth ridiculous."

THE New York correspondent of the Boston Journal writes: Lord Coke asserted that corporations had no souls. This applies, I suppose, to religious corporations as well as to secular. Smart ministers are scarce. Ambitious churches have their eyes wide open to grab at any man who is competent to make a sensation. I know some Western churches who order a minister as they would a bale of goods. They keep an agent in the city, who, when the right article appears, notifies his employers, who make a desperate struggle to obtain him.

Two white women, named Eliza Harris and Jane Hutton, were lately found living in a hollow tree in the woods near Louisville. They earned a living by working in the fields, doing washing, &c. They had come from the neighborhood of Atlanta, Ga., to find work in the city, but failing to do so, they had taken the course described above. They have now been comfortably provided for.

THE Department of Agriculture is making efforts to collect specimens from every department of nature for the purpose of enlarging the already rare cabinet of curiosities deposited in its Museum. Samples of fine wool from the various breeds of sheep, skins of birds and animals, as well as specimens of destructive insects, grain and cereals are particularly solicited.

A PRACTICAL test of the honesty of the Senatorial advocates of female suffrage will soon be made from an unexpected quarter. It will be remembered that Mr. Sumner and others tacitly agreed to the proposition that women should be allowed to vote and hold office whenever they asked for it. A huge political joke is pending on this point.

IN the Legislature of Pennsylvania Mr. Brown, of Mercer, has introduced an act to regulate the carriage of passengers and baggage by railway companies. The act provides that each passenger who has paid regular fare shall be carried on the train, without additional charge, with baggage not exceeding 100 pounds in weight and $200 in value. For the conveyance of this property the company shall be responsible.

ADVICES received here from Annapolis say that the legislature of Maryland is sure to pass the bill restoring all rebels to their full rights of citizenship. The effect of this action will be to make all unionists advocates of negro suffrage.

GENERAL INTELLIGENCE.

In Wheeling, on Christmas night, John Farley was shot by George Brescock. His wound being thought not dangerous, the offender was let off with $500 bail, but on Wednesday last the wounded man died and Brescock was arrested for murder and held for trial.

During the past eleven months New York and her visitors have spent $1,363,551 for amusements.

There is something remarkable in the loss of life by a rapid succession of instances, the scenes of which have been in England and the United States. Almost simultaneously fires occurred in several of the English coal mines, producing the death, by burning or suffocation, of not less than 300 miners. About the same time a shocking case of conflagration happened in New York city; a number of the occupants in one of the houses burned, enveloped in flames and smoke, perished in spite of the most daring efforts made to save them. Then came the disastrous fire in Memphis, with its dozen and odd victims, soon followed by one in Vicksburg, at which an equal number of lives were lost. And finally, the disaster to the steamer Fashion.

A bridge across the river at Detroit, to preserve the continuous railway communication between the Southwest, by that important route, is urged by Mr. Wm. Scott, Civil Engineer.

An American undertaking, called the "St Croix and Lake Superior Railroad Company," has issued, in London, a prospectus inviting subscriptions for £1,300,000 in 7 per cent. bonds, at the price of 62½. The line is to run from Hudson, on the border of Minnesota, through Wisconsin, to Bayfield on Lake Superior. It has a grant of 1,504,000 acres of land, and is described as constituting the shortest land carriage between the navigable waters of the Upper Mississippi and the lakes.

A New York letter says: Speaking of losses reminds me of the unfortunate transactions of some of your Ohio citizens who ventured to enter into competition with the New York stock gamblers. One, an old and very wealthy citizen of Cincinnati, whose name, if mentioned, would fill every one with confidence, foots up his losses at $1,000,000. It is true, a part of this went to the bottom of oil wells, but most of it is in the clutches of the stock gamblers.

The "Stewart divorce case," now in progress before the Circuit Court, in Chicago—disgustingly scandalous in its details—is just now one of the chief topics in that city. The young wife, daughter of a wealthy citizen—Washington Smith, Esq.—asks a divorce from her young husband, who, when married, was preparing for the pulpit, on a charge of adultery. According to the evidence of witnesses, who, however, are not of the most credit-worthy order, the charge will be sustained.

A complete list of prizes captured by the United States Navy during the Rebellion, adjudicated by the Navy Department, has been prepared by the Fourth Auditor for apportionment and distribution. Over 1,000 captured vessels and the successful cruisers are enumerated. It is estimated that not less than five thousand seamen and officers are interested in these prizes, and that from $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 are involved.

The France, alluding to the resolution taken by the Emperor Maximilian to defend his throne, with the support of the clerical party, says that in no case will the French Government reconsider the orders given for completing the evacuation of Mexico by the 1st of March.

The effect of the financial crisis and the consequent distrust in England of public companies is evidenced by the fact that during the year 1866 the number of new companies brought out was only 44 against 287 in 1865, and the capital required was only £10,295,000 against £106,000,000.

The freedmen of the District of Columbia are preparing for a mammoth jubilation over the passage of the Suffrage bill. Several different plans are now under discussion. Among other features of the celebration will be the raising of a liberty pole and a national flag.

The engineering staff of the well known "cigar ship" Ross Winans are supposed to have been drowned in the Thames. A boat containing Mr. Holliday, the chief engineer, five of his officers and a son of the commander of the ship, and two boatmen, put out in a small boat at Northfleet to join the ship. This boat was afterward found keel upward, and nothing had been heard of those who were in her. It is feared that all perished.

Refractory soldiers in St. Domingo are brought to their senses in amusing manner. Coffee is punished by having his hands tied behind him, and then a barrel with both ends open placed over his dusky person. The locality most infected with flies is honored with his compulsory presence, and then his nose is smeared with molasses, and he is left to the polite attentions of his diminutive tormentors.

PERSONAL.

—"Who is John McGinnis?" All that is known about him is that he is an obscure contractor of Chicago, who made some money during the war; that he is of the Copperhead persuasion; that he went to Washington with his wife; that they, John and wife, were then invited to "swing round the circle" to Douglas's grave and back; that they complied with the invitation with alacrity, and that to the amusement of everybody John was subsequently nominated Minister to Stockholm. The last heard of him in Washington is that he made anxious inquiries in regard to the uniform of Embassadors at the Swedish Court. But he is not yet confirmed. All is comical in this affair excepting the fact that a most worthy representative of M. C. Campbell, and a faithful Republican, our present Minister to Sweden, is to be sent into comparative exile to Bogota, in order to make place for this hero.

—A woman of Utica, just deceased, was married three times, and each time her husband's name was Tomkins.

—The Duke de Mouchy, who married some months ago, the Princess Murat, a relative of the Imperial family, has been restored by the Queen of Spain to all his titles as first grandee of Spain; a compliment to the Empress Eugenie.

—Chasseloup Laubat, Secretary of the French Navy, is unfortunate with his iron clads. Three of them, built but one or two years ago, the Invincible, the Normandie and the Carrone, have been entirely condemned. No wonder that the Prussian Secretary of War, General Roon, has declared to the House, that Prussia, when going to organize a German navy, was looking to the United States, as the foremost naval power. M. Laubat's wife is an American lady.

—Auber, the octogenarian chief of all musical academies of France, will be appointed Senator of the Empire, an honor long and well deserved. His compeer, the old Rossini, met lately with an accident. He fell from his arm chair, in which, like Guizot and Thiers, he takes his Italian siesta after dinner, and hurt himself considerably. He was found by his wife, senseless and profusely bleeding, on the floor. But, thanks to the skill of his physician, Viola Bonaparte, he has already entirely recovered.

—The New York Herald replies to the Citizen's nomination of young Bennett for Mayor: "Nor is the owner of the Henrietta ambitious of any such distinction as that suggested. Comparatively speaking, he is but a youth, of an age at which many young men in Europe would be at college. Besides, it has been his fortune to inherit a vocation—that of a leading journalist—which he prefers and prizes before any distinction that offices of a political character could give him. The proposal, therefore, to run him for the office mentioned, however kindly meant, is altogether out of character; is not, as the writer justly supposed, agreeable either to the 'venerable editor,' whose successor he is, or to himself."

—A Washington correspondent tells a story of a Congressman who asked another the name of the book the latter had under his arm. "Rousseau's Confessions," was the reply. "Confessions! What did the d—d fool confess for? The House passed a vote of censure on him, and could do no more." "Oh, that ain't the Rousseau. This is a man who lived in France a hundred years ago, or more. Haven't you ever heard of him?" "No. I thought you meant the fellow from Kentucky." If the inquisitive Congressman continues to keep as well posted, he will probably think that Johnson's "Rambler" means either our President's stumping tour last fall or his last veto message, which commences at the District of Columbia and goes all over the United States.

—A story has been going the rounds since the death in England of the late Lady Fortescue that she was formerly a dancer named Dawson and that her hand was simultaneously sought by Lord Fortescue and Prince Louis Napoleon, now Emperor of the French. She preferred the bird in the hand, which the British peer was, to the large number in the bush contingent on the Prince's possible future. It is a pity to spoil so romantic a story, but the facts are these. It was all the mistake of a printer, and no lady of the ballet ever lost any such brilliant chance. The lady for whom Louis Napoleon and Earl Fortescue contended was not "Miss Dawson, dancer," but Miss Dawson-Damer, a lady of rank and position, and the very reverse of a "dancer?" We have no doubt the correspondent of the Birmingham Daily Post, who first wrote the story, correctly described the Hon, Miss Dawson-Damer, but as we have seen, those dreadful printers heightened the interest by converting a "Damer" into a "dancer." This incident is only equaled by that in which a Plymouth printer metamorphosed "Von Beust, Austrian Minister," into "Tom Beast, Christian Minister."

—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the London Herald writes as follows: "The 9th of December is a memorable day in the annals of the Russian theater. It was on that day thirty years ago that Glinka's popular opera of 'A Life for the Czar' was played for the first time. Petroff sang the part of 'Soosanine' when the piece was originally produced. He has not once failed to appear in it since, and he repeated the part for the two hundred and seventy-third time for his benefit on Sunday. The anniversary was a real triumph for the singer. His admirers presented him with a handsome silver cup and salver, surrounded with a wreath of laurel, and the Grand Duchess Helen sent him the diploma of honorary member of the St. Petersburg Conservatory."

—Mr. Hatley Frere, the venerable expositor of prophecy, died on the 8th of December, at the vicarage of Shillington, Bedfordshire, England.

—Mrs. P. A. Hanaford, a well known writer, is a duly accredited minister of the Universalist denomination, and is supplying the pulpit at Hingham, Mass.

—Warren Ackerman, a young merchant of New York, and a member of a Reformed Dutch Church, recently informed his minister that he had made a good deal of money during the past year, and asked what good use he might put some to. His pastor told him that their Board of Foreign Missions was $46,000 in debt, and recommended him to give five thousand dollars to the Board. He did so at once, and went home. The next morning before breakfast that gentleman came back much troubled in spirit and said: "I did not give enough last night." He sat down quickly and wrote his check for forty-six thousand dollars, and thus swept off a burdensome debt of their missionary board by one stroke of his pen! "Now," says he, "I feel better."

General Grant and the Suffrage Bill.

As an attempt is evidently making to put General Grant into a false position in regard to the President's views of the suffrage bill, we do not think ourselves wrong in printing the following extract from a letter from a private but well informed source in Washington. Its statements are trustworthy:

WASHINGTON, January 9, 1867.

* * * I happen to know that General Grant was not opposed to the District of Columbia suffrage bill, but in favor of it.

The General minds his own business, and does not mix himself voluntarily in political discussions; and among those who know the facts, considerable disgust is felt at the shabby manner in which the President lugged him into the suffrage question.

I can tell you something more: General Grant, in answer to a question, said that if he had been in Mr. Johnson's place, he would undoubtedly and unhesitatingly have signed the District of Columbia suffrage bill. But I believe he was not even asked for his advice; but his presence was requested at a particular time with the President, just as last summer Mr. Johnson dragged Grant and Farragut around the country with him, until they left him.—N. Y. Post, Thursday.

DEMOCRATIC MOVEMENT.—A New York letter of Thursday says: It is understood that some of the members of the Democratic National Committee had a consultation at the Astor House, this afternoon, with reference to the suggestion of the Connecticut State Convention that a call be issued for a National Convention, in which all the States shall be represented, to assemble in New York on the 4th of March next. The definitive result is not known, but there is reason to believe that the prevailing sentiment is favorable to the proposition, and that the Chairman, Mr. Belmont, will issue a call accordingly in the course of a few days. It is thought, however, that the 22d of February will be preferred to the 4th of March.

THEODORE TILTON, in the last number of the Independent, tells of his "Pilgrimage to Kansas, the Massachusetts of the West." On landing at Leavenworth, he says he "had four companions—Gen. Custer, and his three dogs." He says nothing about Custer, but is enthusiastic upon the subject of Kansas, and concludes as follows: "What if Kansas had become a Slave State? Think of it! Jeff Davis might have been President of the United States at this hour—a contingency which no loyal American can harbor in his mind for a moment, except for a single mitigating reflection, that this would have saved us from Andrew Johnson."

A CANADIAN paper relates that as Dr. Hamilton, of Sutton, Browne county, was returning from visiting a patient a few days since, his horses took fright and upset the vehicle. The doctor was thrown out, and the horses continued their mad career; but the doctor's dog, seeing his master lying motionless, ran after the horses, caught the reins, which were trailing on the ground, with his teeth, and succeeded in stopping them—nor would he let go till his insensible master was brought to the carriage. The doctor has recovered from his injuries.

THE second Controller has directed that when a father, who, by reason of the death of a son in the service, was entitled to additional bounty, died before receiving the same, leaving no widow, the bounty cannot legally be paid to any one: that the bounty is a naked gratuity, personal to the party to whom Congress granted it, and when no provision is made by law for its descent to the heirs of the beneficiary a prohibition is implied. The decision affects many such cases on file at the Auditor's office.

☞ NOTICE TO

IRON AND STEEL MANUFACTURERS

The Proprietors and Assignees of the several Letters Patent issued to Henry Bessemer and Robert Mushet, of England, and to William Kelly and others of this country, for the manufacture of IRON AND STEEL, by their various processes, in the United States, have, for the purpose of avoiding all conflict of claims under said patents, consolidated their interests, and appointed the undersigned Trustees, and are now prepared to grant Licenses for Manufacture and Sale under the various Letters Patent, and to furnish all necessary information and working drawings.

The great strength and toughness and perfect homogeneity of the BESSEMER or PNEUMATIC CAST STEEL, and the comparative cheapness of its production, as well as the already enormous consumption of it are too well known to require comment.

The process may be witnessed at the works of Messrs. WINSLOW, GRISWOLD & HOLLEY, at Troy.

Further information as to terms and particulars of cost, instructions, &c, may be obtained by addressing either of the undersigned.

CITY MATTERS.

Reopening of the Jewish Synagogue on Hancock Street.

The Jewish Synagogue, on Hancock street, has been closed for the past three months, for the purpose of repairs and alterations. It was again formally reopened on Saturday morning last, on which occasion an immense audience had assembled. The Synagogue has been greatly improved, several thousands of dollars having been expended thereon. The ceiling and walls have been admirably covered with the richest artistic designs. The arrangements of the seats has been materially changed, pews having been introduced in the place of benches. The ladies and gentlemen are now seated together, each family occupying its own pew. The Synagogue floor is covered with rich carpet and no expense seems to have been spared in enriching this house of worship. It presents a most beautiful and finished appearance.

The exercises on Saturday morning were highly interesting and impressive. As we entered the organ began to peal forth its most inspiring strains, which, when mingled with the voices of the choir, blended into harmony as sweet and soul-stirring as any we have ever heard. The devotion and silence which reigned within seemed to lend a fitting representation to the solemnity of the exercises. The Psalms of David were chanted in the Hebrew tongue, sounding as if from the vine clad hills of the Holy Land. The more modern hymns were sung in the German tongue, a language whose classical formation is so beautifully adapted for the expression of every holier sentiment and divine aspiration of humanity.

The scrolls of the law were then taken from the ark which, after certain parts had been read therefrom, were again returned. The minister of the congregation, Rev. L. Naumburg, then proceeded to deliver the dedicatory address. This discourse was well delivered, wisely conceived, and richly deserves to be called eloquent. The reverend reviewed the history of the congregation, gracefully neglecting to credit himself with the rich fruits of his own ministry. He recurred to the obstacles against which they had to contend, and implored them to dedicate their lives within and without the synagogue to their God. He closed with a fervent prayer in behalf of the nation, State and city.

This lecture being over, the choir discoursed in most effective and perfect style the closing hymn. A short benediction being then pronounced by the minister, the audience slowly and silently wended their way, to mingle once more in the busy avenues of our mortal pilgrimage.

Too much credit cannot be awarded to Messrs. Burke & Glass, of Seventh street, who superintended the painting and graining, or to James Hanlon, whose skill as a carpenter, has added much to the beauty of the Synagogue. The carpets were from the firm of McFarland & Co., on Fifth street. The general superintendence of the whole was committed to Messrs. Bierman, Morganstern & Rosenbach, the success of whose labors are eloquently represented in the beauty of the arrangements.

Writs of Habeas Corpus Applied For.

On Saturday morning in the Court of Common Pleas, Judge Sterrett presiding, a petition was presented from William J Arnold, alias "Snibbs" Arnold, asking a writ of habeas corpus, with a view of effecting his release from jail. Arnold was committed to jail some days since, charged with being a professional thief, and the object is to test the legality of the commitment. A writ was issued and made returnable on the fifteenth instant.

A petition for a writ of habeas corpus was also presented by T. Parker Lyman, now in jail awaiting trial on a charge of larceny. Lyman was tried for stealing clothing from Massey's dyeing and scouring establishment, Fourth street, but was acquitted. After his release he went to the Mayor's office and claimed a coat which was among those alleged to have been stolen. This coat was afterwards identified by Edward Brush as his property, and an information was made against Lyman before Mayor McCarthy. On this he was re-arrested, and committed to jail for trial. In the application the defendant claims that he had already been tried for the larceny of the coat in question, and having been duly acquitted, the second arrest and imprisonment is illegal. The writ as asked for was issued, and made returnable on Tuesday morning.

OBITUARY.—Prof. W. W. Dickson, teacher of mathematics in the High School, died at his residence, 144 Webster street, Sixth ward, Saturday morning, after a brief illness from typhoid fever. Prof. Dickson was an accomplished scholar, excelling, however, in mathematics, to the study of which branch of education he had given many years of his life. Too close application to the duties of his profession had undermined his health, and he fell an easy prey to the disease which terminated his mortal existence. He was a kind preceptor, an attentive and amiable husband and father, an upright citizen, and a Christian, whose sudden death is a severe blow to an interesting family. His remains will be taken to Mercer county for interment.

PASSING COUNTERFEIT MONEY.—Allendar Marks was arrested and taken before Alderman Lynch, of the Third ward, yesterday, charged on oath of Joseph Bebe, with attempting to pass on the prosecutor a counterfeit two dollar note on the First National Bank of Chester, knowing the same to be spurious. Marks denied that he had any knowledge of the worthlessness of the note at the time he presented it, and stated that he believed it was genuine. He received it from a farmer in Westmoreland county. He gave bail in the sum of one thousand dollars for a hearing to-morrow.

STOVE MOULDERS' STRIKE.—The stove moulders of this city and vicinity have been on a "strike" for two weeks past, in consequence of a proposition on the part of the employers to reduce their wages twenty per cent. The moulders held a meeting, when it was resolved to resist any reduction of wages. The moulders allege they have been working for forty per cent. less than is paid in Cincinnati. They are backed up by the International Association, lately in session in Boston, and are determined to stand out.

THE COMMERCIAL IN CANTON.—The enterprising news agent, Mr. John M. Faber, is the sole agent in Canton, Ohio, for the COMMERCIAL, and our patrons in that vicinity will find him prompt and faithful in the delivery of the paper. All persons desiring the paper left at their residences immediately on the arrival of the train should leave their names with Mr. Faber, and he will promptly serve them.

ACCIDENT.—On Saturday afternoon, a lad named Charles Woodhouse, employed at a steam saw in the turning factory of Messrs. Algeo & Co., on Virgin alley, had the thumb of his left hand almost severed at the first joint by coming in contact with the saw while in motion.

PRESENTATION TO THE EAGLE.—D. Lyle, Chief Engineer of the Philadelphia Fire Department, presented last week to the Eagle Fire Company of this city a handsome silver-mounted trumpet, as a mark of personal esteem for the members composing the company.

ALLEGHENY WATCH HOUSE.—There were eleven cases of drunkenness and disorderly conduct in the Allegheny lock-up yesterday morning, after the payment of nominal fines they were discharged.

REGULAR ARMY APPOINTMENT.—General Thos. E. Rose, of this city, late Colonel of the 77th Pennsylvania Volunteers, has received the appointment of Captain in the 11th United States Infantry.

Police Items.

BEFORE MAYOR MORRISON.—John Guy, George Shrater and Frederick Kenny entered Anthony Hoffman's saloon in the Third ward, Allegheny, on Saturday night, and commenced playing cards. During the game a dispute arose between the parties, when, it is alleged, Shrater and Kenny commenced an assault upon Guy, and struck him upon the head with a chair, inflicting an ugly gash. They also demolished about half a dozen chairs. The night watch happening by took Shrater and Kenny into custody, and yesterday morning Guy lodged an information against them before Mayor Morrison for assault and battery. They were held in three hundred dollars bail each for trial at Court.

BEFORE ALDERMAN DONALDSON.—Mr. James B. Lyon appeared and made an information before this Alderman on Saturday, against James Mullen, for obtaining goods under false pretense. Mr. Lyon alleges that Mullen received from him glassware and sundry other articles, to the amount of one hundred and thirty dollars, by representing that he owned some real estate in Sewickley, and would pay him. This the deponent afterwards discovered to be untrue, and upon asking Mullen for the amount due him was met by a refusal and declaration that the debt would never be paid. A warrant was placed in the hands of an officer, but the accused has not yet been arrested. Harry Bradly, a drover and butcher residing in Allegheny, was arrested on a charge of larceny preferred against him by Thomas K. Belt, a butcher doing business in the Allegheny market, on Friday, sold to Belt a calf, for which the latter alleges he paid him the sum of thirteen dollars and ten cents. Mr. Belt tied the calf to his stall and during his temporary absence it was stolen. He subsequently found the animal in the possession of Mr. Hoeh, a butcher doing business in the same market, who informed him that he purchased it from Bradley for twelve dollars, the latter stating that it belonged to him. Mr. Belt accordingly appeared before Alderman Donaldson and lodged the information against Bradley as stated. The accused was taken into custody by officer Barber and committed to the county jail for a hearing. Thomas Monroe was charged with larceny, in having stolen a quantity of clothing from the Soldiers' Home, in the Ninth ward, the information having been made by Dr. C. B. King, Physician at the Home. He was committed to jail in default of two hundred dollars bail. George Anderson was held to bail in the sum of one hundred dollars to be and appear at the March term of the Court as a witness in the above case, and failing to procure the required amount was committed to prison. James Norris was arrested and committed to jail to await trial on a charge of assault and battery preferred against him by Christina Whiting. He subsequently procured bail and was released.

BEFORE ALDERMAN TAYLOR.—Thomas Simpson is a boarder at the house of Richard Hancox, in the Ninth ward. On Friday night Hancox was about chastising his wife, when Simpson interfered in behalf of the wife, and, it is alleged, commenced an assault upon Hancox striking him with a dinner plate, knocking him down and dragging him over the floor by the leg. Hancox upon regaining his feet, it is alleged, threatened vengeance upon Simpson, and to use the latter's words, said "he would stick him like a pig." Neither party gaining satisfaction, they appealed to the law for redress and on Saturday Hancox made an information before Alderman Taylor against Simpson for assault and battery, and Simpson in return entered suit against Hancox for surety of the peace. They were each held to bail for a hearing to-day.

BEFORE ALDERMAN LYNCH.—An information for Assault and battery was lodged before Alderman Lynch on Saturday, by Sarah Jones, against a Welchman named Richard James. James is a tenant in a house owned by the prosecutrix, in Pipetown, and when Mrs. Jones called upon him for the rent due her, he, it is alleged, violently ejected her from the house. The belligerent James was arrested, and required to give bail for his appearance at the next term of the Criminal Court and answer.

BEFORE ALDERMAN HAYS.—There appeared on Saturday before Alderman Alex. Hays, of the First Ward, Allegheny, John Anthony, who alleged that a mulatto girl named Letitia Murray, a servant in his family, had stolen from the secretary in his wife's chamber twenty-five dollars in greenbacks. A warrant was issued for the arrest of Letitia for larceny.

BEFORE JUSTICE LIPPERT.—A German named Anthony Delegata was accused of larceny before Justice Lippert, of Pitt township, on Saturday, the information having been made by Christian Beur, tavern keeper in that township. Delegata was charged with having entered Beur's tavern on Friday and after having demolished several glass goblets, carried off a felt hat valued at five dollars. He was held to bail for trial, and failing to procure the required amount, was committed to jail.

BEFORE BURGESS BARKER.—Two men named Robert Baldwin and Andrew Tierney were arrested and taken before Burgess Wm. H. Barker, of South Pittsburgh, on Saturday, charged, on oath of Patrick McGrath, with having committed a breach of the public peace in that borough on Friday night. They were committed to the county prison for a hearing to-day, in default of three hundred dollars bail each. Baldwin afterwards succeeded in obtaining the requisite amount of bail and was released.

The Truth about Dyspepsia.

Whoever says that dyspepsia is incurable, tells a—that is to say, makes an egregious mistake. More than ten thousand aggravated cases have been cured by HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, while the number that have been prevented from coming to a head, by the same means, is incalculable. In Winter and early Spring, when the appetite is sometimes too vigorous for the comfort and safety of the stomach, indigestion is most prevalent and most distressing. Is the appetite to be balked to accommodate the digestive organs? Not so; for the frame would lack its due proportion of nutriment. The thing to be done is to STRENGTHEN THE STOMACH, tone the liver, and put the bowels in perfect order. Nothing will do this so effectually, so rapidly, so quietly, so pleasantly, as HOSTETTER'S BITTERS. This potent preparation trims and balances the system, and clothes it, as it were, with defensive armor. Chronic dyspepsia, liver complaint, and fever and ague are never known to attack those who are wise enough to invoke the aid of this great preventive.

SATURDAY, January 12, 1867.

The local money market throughout the week that has just closed, has been characterized by excessive stringency, and the demand to-day was pressingly active on our various houses of discount. The wants in this line of our business community had accumulated during the time previous to the January statements, and the expectations entertained that after the 8th there would be a flush money market here, have been very meagerly realized. It is true some of the banks are able to extend a full line of accommodations to their customers, yet there is no disposition to go beyond and assist outside applicants.

—The break down in the New York stock market has had rather a damaging effect on financial matters. Everybody was predicting a quick rise in all the leading stocks about the first week of the New Year. There was a most extraordinary effort on the part of the "bears" to disappoint the public, by changing the tendency of the market downwards. This during the past few days has been another of those adroit and disreputable experiments which were made in December last, and as the Times remarks "gave the Third National Bank of New York city, and certain other concerns of somewhat equivocal notoriety; with the difference that strictly private lenders, like the heavy and wealthy importing concerns up town and the Foreign Exchange Brokers and Bankers in Wall street and Exchange Place, were to be approached and paid to help a panic. That the scheme was successful to the extent of several millions of dollars there is no question, and that stocks were borne down 1@2 and in some instances 2½@3 per cent. the official list of sales in the forenoon sufficiently shows. But the operation became so patent to the Street and so disgusting to many of the Wall street Bank officers, as well as to very many private money firms, who refused to be tempted into being made parties to it, that extra efforts were made before 2 o'clock to assist all good borrowers from whom pre-existing loans had been suddenly withdrawn, and at the close of Bank hours it was found every one was made up with infinitely less inconvenience than had been apprehended."

—The noon quotations received to-day at S. S. Bryan's stock rooms, show a manifest recovery, and prices are advancing almost as rapidly as they fell:

—The list of sheriffs' sales advertised to take place January 26th, 1867, embraces the following property belonging to oil companies: The property of the Globe Oil Company, in Sugar creek township, Venango county, at the suit of Winsor Brothers; the property of the President Petroleum Company, containing eight thousand acres, at the suit of Barton E. Fleming; the property of the East Sandy and Allegheny Oil Company, at the suit of J. P. Morrison and J. K. Dale; the property of the East Oil Creek Petroleum Company, at the suit of Wm. C. Evans; the Culbertson Run Oil Company property, at the suit of David Christy, for use of Henry A. Weaver, of Pittsburgh; the property of the Consolidated Oil Company, at the suit of Charles G. Poulson; also the Silver Farm Petroleum Company, at the suit of Wm. Painter and R. P. Gillingham. These properties were put into companies at enormous prices, and will be sold under the Sheriff's hammer at a mere fraction of the original cost. Probably in the long run it is better they should change owners, and revert back again into farming lands. The agricultural interests of Oildom have been sadly neglected, as nearly all the most available farming property has been held by companies organized for mining purposes, and with no regard whatever to cultivating the soil.

—We present below the official statement of the approximate earnings of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railway Company during the month of December, 1866, and a comparison with the same period of the years 1864 and 1865:

—The Tribune says: The market is very sensitive, and lenders with pocketbooks full of stocks, local and national, held as collateral on loans to speculators, are desirous of reducing their loans, but see no way to do it without causing a decline, which might leave them the owners of stocks now held as collateral. It is a fact conceded in bank-parlors that the loans weekly reported are in a dangerous degree upon unproductive railway shares, which, under their present earnings, are upon the road to the prices paid before the trade of the country was stimulated by the expenditures to suppress the rebellion. Loans upon these securities while the market was advancing were pleasant and profitable, but the return passage is not so agreeable or safe.

A The depression of business in this city is illustrated by the important statement that one of our heaviest and most prosperous firms, which paid a tax upon several millions of income last year, will this year be unable to pay a single cent, owing to heavy losses and general dullness of trade that reduced the receipts below the actual expenses.

These statements will surprise no one who has observed the course of trade since January, 1866. Declining prices and preferred payments from the interior, aided by enormous rents and store expenses; have united to make the year 1866 very unsatisfactory to traders throughout the Union.—N. Y. Tribune.

—At an election held by the stockholders of the Franklin Bank on the 7th inst., the following gentlemen were elected Directors for the ensuing year: Samuel Plumer, P. M'Gough, J. E. Muse, J. M. Bredin, G. E. Ridgway. Subsequently the Directors elected P. M'Gough President, and R. L. Cochran Cashier. The stockholders of this bank are individually liable—a very good feature and an assurance of safety.—Venango Spectator.

PRODUCE AND GENERAL MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH COMMERCIAL, SATURDAY EVENING, January 12, 1867.

The week closes without any change noticeable in the condition of our markets, from what it was a week ago. The only demand appears to be for flour and groceries to supply immediate wants. Flour is pretty active, but it is of a local character, and without any attempt to speculate. Holders are indifferent about selling except at full prices, for the reason that the stocks on hand are light and they anticipate higher prices. There is very little doing in wheat.

We annex the following review of markets, condensed from our mail exchanges:

FLOUR AND GRAIN.

In Philadelphia there is little or no demand for flour for shipment, but there is a fair inquiry from the home trade at full prices.

About 8,500 bbls sold, in lots, at prices ranging from $8 25a8 75 for superfine, $9 00a10 75 for extra, $11 50a13 50 for low grade and fancy north west family, $13 00a14 50 for Pennsylvania and Ohio family, and $15a17 per bbl for fancy brands, according to quality. Rye flour sells in a small way at $7 25 per bbl.

Prime wheat, as we have noticed for some time past, continues scarce and in demand at full prices, but other kinds are dull and neglected; 5,000 bushels of Pennsylvania red sold at $2 70a3 20; 6,000 bushels of Southern do at $3 00a3 25; small lots of Pennsylvania and Southern white at $3 25a3 35, and 9,000 bushels of California white at $3 25 per bushel, and small lots at $3 30. Rye has advanced: 3,000 bushels sold at $1 35a1 37 for western, and $1 40 per bushel for Pennsylvania. Corn is in fair demand at an advance; about 47,000 bushels new yellow sold at from 98c@1 03 per bushel, and small lots of old do at $1 18. Oats have also advanced; 36,000 bushels sold at 58a59c for Delaware, and 58a61c per bushel for Pennsylvania.

The Chicago Times, of Saturday, says: The Wheat market was more than usually unsettled and irregular. A new buyer appeared in the market and accepted of quite a number of options, and prices were again advanced fully 1c per bushel from the closing range of yesterday, and operators were laboring under a considerable degree of uncertainty as to whether this new buyer represented a fresh clique of speculators who had contrived for an upward turn in the markets, or whether he was in the interest of the warehousemen who were seeking to galvanize the markets into some degree of activity. What he was, or in whose interest he was operating, soon ceased, however, to be a matter of interest, for he became discouraged at the advance in prices and withdrew from the markets. The warehousemen then made an effort to realize on a limited amount, which produced a bad break in prices, the market giving way to $1 94@1 94½ for No. 2, and closing weak. The receipts were better to-day, and we understand that a still larger number of cars are in for to-morrow. The warehousemen will scarcely dare to let prices droop here until they can get out in New York, and operators generally, comprehending their dilemma, are forcing all the wheat possible upon them while these high prices last, and also advising their country correspondents to embrace this favorable opportunity. No. 1 and rejected were rather quiet, and closed nominal. The principal business being in No. 2. Sales include 400 bush No. 1 spring, $2 18½; 2,400 do, $2 18; 15,000 do, $2 17½; 4,400 No 2 spring, (A., D. & Co. and F. & T.) $2; 25,000 do, $1 96; 16,600 do, $1 95½; 2,000 do, $1 95¼; 9,800 do, $1 95; 400 rejected spring, $1 61; 1,200 do, $1 63½. By sample—800 bush good spring, $2 22, delivered; 2,000 extra do $2 40; and 600 do, $2 20, both on track. The receipts were 16,826; the shipments 10,400. The corn market ruled rather dull, and transactions were limited, though prices were without any particular change, closing at 79c for No. 1. No. 2 was a trifle easier, with sales at 69a69½c. New rejected sold at 55a54c. Sales include 800 bush white, 80c; 5,000 bush No. 1, 79½c; 11,800 do, 79c; 1,200 No. 2, 69½c; 800 do, 69c; 3,200 new, rejected, 54c; 12,400 do, 53c. The receipts were 35,850 bush; the shipments nothing.

In Cincinnati flour is as dull as ever, says the Commercial of to-day, though there is no pressure to sell nor concessions proposed to induce trading. It would though, perhaps be useless to make them, as no one seems to care to buy more than they have a demand for in the regular course of business. Wheat is dull, though offerings are light. No. 2 spring is held at $2 20 by those who have it on the market. No. 1 is firm at $2 40. No. 2 red winter has $2 80 as a trading figure, though that figure is not readily accepted, and 5c higher is in most cases asked. No. 1 winter is hardly to be had at less than $2 90. White is rarely found among the offerings now. Corn is steady. Ear was sold at the lower roads in bulk at 55c, and shelled at 60@60c. The offerings, however, are still in excess of the demand.

PROVISIONS AND HOGS.

The Cincinnati market, for the past week, is reviewed by George W. Phillips, Jr., in his circular letter, of Friday, as follows: "Our provision market, early in the week, owing to the large receipts of hogs, was rather depressed; but during the past two days, the receipts being much lighter, prices have somewhat stiffened up, and at the close to-day, a firmer feeling was exhibited in most articles of the product of the hog. Hogs—Prices have ranged during the most of the week past, at from $5 75 to $6 25, gross, or at from $7 00 to $7 40 net: but at the close, under the light receipts of yesterday and to-day, (Friday) were firmer, and the current rates were at from $6 00 to $6 50 gross, or at $7 00 to $7 50 net. The receipts for the last twenty-four hours were 3,091; for the week, 59,469, and for the season, 363,831, or 10,060 more than was packed here last year. The receipts to-day, at Chicago, were 18,000. Mess Pork—There has been but little change in this article, and prices have remained steady at from $19 50 to $20 00, though at the close a slight advance was obtained, and $19 75a20 represents more nearly the views of holders. I hear of but few Rumps offering, and $16 would be a fair, though nominal quotation for them. Lard has ranged steady at 11¾c during the week, but it would now be difficult to buy prime city kettled at 11¾a12c, with a quiet market. Prime steam, 11¾a11⅞c; head and gut, 10¾c. Greases 7½a9½c. Keg is held at 12½a13c, and in small demand. Green meats—6¾a8c, and 9½a10c are the current prices for shoulders, sides and hams—the latter figure being for light hams. Bulk meats are in fair demand at 7½a7⅞c; 9½a9⅞c, 10¾ and 10¾c for shoulders, sides clear ribbed and clear sides, packed. Bacon—there has been more on the market than at date of my last, and the asking prices for shoulders, sides, clear ribbed and clear sides to-day were 11¼a11¾c, 11⅝c, 12c and 12½c, packed, with a very light stock of clear sides, which were in good demand at 12c; sugar cured hams, canvased and packed, 16c for new and 18½c for old. Plate beef $18a20, Beef hams, in sugar pickle $28a30.

The Louisville Hog Market is reported by the Courier, of Friday, as quiet, with receipts the day previous of only 200 head. Prices were nominally 6@6½c. The total slaughter to date is about 161,000 head, with the prospect of the number reaching 165,000 for the entire season.

The New Albany, Ind., Ledger, of Thursday, says:

The hog season at this point is about ended. Up to to-day M. McDonald & Co. have killed 9,200 head, averaging, net, 210 pounds each. Kent & Beckman have killed, in all about 800, most of them on commission, making the total slaughter of the season here 10,000 head. We doubt if a better lot of pork has been packed at any point in the West than that packed by M. McDonald & Co.

From November 20 1866, to January 9, 1867, the total number of hogs received here over the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago Railroad is 21,800, against 12,060 during the season of 1865-66. This shows a largely increased number of hogs in the country the present season over the last; for in no previous season have so many hogs been slaughtered by the farmers at home as during the one of 1866-67.

There will probably be more bacon in the country this year than ever before and it is easy to see what effect this will have upon the price of barreled pork, which is, but little in excess in supply this season over last, in this section of Indiana.

From such data as we have been able to procure, we think that the packing of the entire State this year over last will be about 110,000 head. This estimate is not the exact figures, but from memoranda we have kept of the packing, we are satisfied it is not far from correct.

COAL.

The Louisville Democrat, of Friday, says: The question of fuel is just now attracting some attention, in view of the moderate supply of coal and the prospect of continued inclement weather. The supply at the wharf in this city and at Jeffersonville is estimated at 500,000 bushels. Dealers are now selling Pittsburgh coal at 22 cents at retail.

The Cincinnati Enquirer, of to-day, says: There is a fair degree of activity. The sales afloat are 8½c per bushel for Ohio river, and 11c for Youghiogheny. The rates delivered to consumers are 13a14c for Ohio river and 16c for Youghiogheny.

GROCERIES.

The receipts per railroad, since our last were of flour 160 bbls; apples, 198 bbls; corn, 650 sacks; wheat, 160 sacks; rye, 175 sacks; oats, 659 sacks. We quote as follows:

BUSINESS.—So far as relates to oil was not very active. Buyers and sellers as a general thing, were wide apart in their views, the result was we have but few sales to record. Navigation remains closed to all points, there being no prospect of an early resumption. The supply of Allegheny oil in the market is small. A number of lots were disposed of, all of which were for spring delivery on the opening of navigation. The current rates for bulk were 9c. Smith's Ferry oil is offering very freely. A number of sales were made pretty low down in the figures, for instance, bulk 7¼@7¾c.

Refined Oil—The market was devoid of activity. The week's operations were not very extensive, all of which were for Philadelphia, delivery extending in some instances until fall. The nominal rates for bonded were 20@21c, free on the cars, according to the favor of the brand. Among the sales on Monday was 5,500 bbls bonded, extending from March to December, all Philadelphia; March prices were 30c; December 37c. On Tuesday the refined sales were 4,000 barrels bonded, Philadelphia delivery, extending from June to November. Wednesday there were no transactions; dealers were holding off waiting for something to turn up. The week closed dull, the supply being in excess of the demand, besides refiners have a large supply of the raw material on hand, and are busily engaged in manufacturing to fill orders that were contracted for future delivery. Free oil was neglected; the only sales were for jobbing purposes; prices have been irregular for some time. Saturday, the crude market was without activity, there being no demand; we did not learn of a single transaction; prices were nominal.

Refined oil was more sought after; sales were made on Saturday afternoon to the extent of 5,500 barrels at prices that were current for some days; we note as follows, all for Philadelphia delivery: 1,000 barrels bonded, May, 32c; 1,000 barrels, 1,000 barrels do, June at 33c; 1,000 barrels, 1,000 bbls and 500 barrels, July, 34c—being a large improvement on the amount sold over the previous day.

The Titusville Herald, of Saturday, reports the market active and steady at previous quotations. The following sales were reported: 1,500 barrels on the McClintock Farm for the New York market, 46 gravity, at $2 00 at the wells; 2,000 barrels on Bennehoff run by the Bennehoff Petroleum Company, for the New York market on private terms; 1,000 barrels on Benninghoff Hill for the New York market, 48 gravity, at $1 75 at the wells; 1,000 barrels on Bennehoff run by the Petroleum Mining Company for the New York market, 48 gravity, at $1 75 at the wells; six car loads on Pioneer run by the Benninghoff Oil Company, for the New York market, 48 gravity, at $2 00 delivered on the cars; two car loads on Pioneer run by the Benninghoff Oil Company, for the New York market, 50 gravity, at $1 80 delivered on the cars; 500 barrels on Bennehoff run by the Bennehoff Mutual Petroleum Company, for the New York market, 46 gravity, at $1 80 at the wells; 1,000 barrels on Benninghoff Hill for the Cleveland market, 48 gravity, at $1 75 at the wells; 500 barrels on Pioneer run by the land interest Foster Farm, for the New York market, 48 gravity, at $1 80 at the wells; 300 barrels on Pioneer run by the working interest Foster Farm, for the New York market, 48 gravity, at $1 80 at the wells; 100 barrels on Bull run for the New York market, 48 gravity, at $1 80 delivered on the cars.

There is very little crude oil in Philadelphia, says the Commercial List, of Saturday, and it is held firmly with a moderate inquiry. Sales of 1,000 bbls for last half of January at 18¾c; 500 bbls on the spot at 19c; 500 bbls in bulk at 13 cents. There has been more activity in refined, in bond, with more disposition to operate for future delivery, and prices have advanced one cent per gallon. Sales of 4,000 bbls P L S to W, on the spot at 27a27½a28c—closing at 28c; 3,000 bbls for February at 29c; 3,500 bbls for March at 30a30½c; 1,000 bbls for April at 31c; 2,000 bbls for May at 31a32c; 2,000 bbls for June at 33a34c; 2,000 bbls for July at 34½a35c; 1,600 bbls for August at 35c; 1,000 bbls for September at 35a35½c; 1,000 bbls for October at 36c; 1,000 bbls for November at 36½c; and 500 bbls for December at 37c. Free oil sells at 47a50c, in large and small lots. Prices of Residuum and Benzine are nominal. The receipts during the week were 1,260 bbls crude and 3,900 bbls refined. During the week three vessels cleared, taking 112,328 gallons of refined.

IRON MARKETS.

IRONTON, OHIO.

The Register, of Thursday, says: The trade is extremely dull. Nothing whatever is doing in metals. The suspension of navigation would prevent shipments, even if orders were plentiful. The following furnaces have gone out of blast for the season: Olive, Pinegrove, Center, Pioneer; Lawrence and Mt. Vernon will blow out this week; Vesuvius, Etna and Hecla continue in blast for some weeks yet. The stock of pig on hand is quite small. Prices are hardly quotable, and $47a48 for mill, and $48a50 for foundry are given. The sales of bar during the last month has very much decreased. There is no activity in the market now. After this week, operations at the mills will have ceased altogether. The Belfont Iron Works (nails) will also stop this week. The stock on hand is very light, and will be immediately disposed of on the opening of navigation.

The past year has been one of great activity among the iron manufacturers, though with but little profit during the last six months. We give the amount of iron manufactured in this place in 1866:

Bar, tons	6,650
Stoves and Castings, tons	1,153
Nails, tons	3,687

Bloom Furnace, in Scioto county, was sold at Sheriff sale last week for $60,000. Mr. James M. Cole was the purchaser.

PHILADELPHIA.

The North American says: Pig Metal is less active and rather lower. Sales of No. 1 Anthracite at $49a50 per ton, and No. 2 at $45a46 per ton. Scotch Pig moves slowly at $50a51. CHICAGO MARKET.

CHICAGO, January 12, 1867.

FLOUR—Quiet; spring wheat $10 37a12.

WHEAT—2 or 3c lower; No. 1 $3 15a2 25; No. 2, $1 93a1 94.

CORN—Unchanged and firm; receipts, 38,000 bus.; sales of No. 1, at 79½c.

RYE—Quiet; No. 1 closed firm at 88c.

BARLEY—Neglected; No. 2, 71c.

MESS PORK—Firm with a good demand at $18 50.

LARD—11¼a11⅜c.

DRESSED HOGS—Firmer, closing at $6 65a6 80. The week now closing has been an active one for packers and dealers in hogs. More hogs have been received during the last six days than for any corresponding period in nearly two years, and should the weather and roads continue good the receipts next week will doubtless be again large. This brisk movement in hogs creates a steady demand on the banks for money by country correspondents, which, with large local requirements, renders the money market decidedly close. The current rate of interest is ten per cent., and packers have the preference.

Weekly Review of the Wholesale Market.

NEW YORK, January 12.—The market opened very strong for breadstuffs this week, but closes dull and heavy. Receipts of flour have been larger, which has given buyers the advantage. About one-third of the purchases made during the week have been for investment, owing to the extreme prices insisted upon, and but little flour taken for export. We notice a moderate reduction in stock, chiefly of low grades, at the close. Cornmeal has been fairly active at former prices, but closes heavy. Rye flour has been in fair request, but at various prices and closes quiet at $6 50 to $8 10. Buckwheat flour was more active, but declined, closing at $3 to $3 50.

The wheat market opened brilliant, with an active demand, but closes dull and rather easier.

Barley fluctuated, owing to changes in freight, but at the close in some inquiry for export. We quote Western fall at 78a88 cents.

Oats fluctuated somewhat at the close, and prices are lower.

Rye opened firmer, but since then the demand abated, and prices are easier. The market closed quiet; old western at $1 26.

Corn rapidly advanced early in the week, but subsequently fell off. The market closed unsettled at $1 18@1 19 for western mixed. The stock has been reduced since the 1st inst. about 200,000 bushels, but is still large.

Pork fluctuated somewhat, but closed with more steadiness at $19 12 for old Mess and $20 25@20 38 for new western Mess.

Beef ruled steady, with a fair trade at $17@21 50 for new extra mess.

Cut meats declined materially, and were in fair request at the close. Shoulders 8½@9¼c and Hams at 10@12½c. Lard in fair demand in part for export. At the close prices were better, with light receipts of new.

RIVER TELEGRAMS.

Oil City.

Special Dispatch to Pittsburgh Commercial.
[Per Merchants' National Telegraph Line.]

OIL CITY, January 12, 1867.—River remains open here, with a great deal of shore ice. The weather is cloudy and moderating. K.

Louisville.

LOUISVILLE, January 13.—River stationary, with four foot scant in the canal. The rain Saturday night and Sunday morning rotted the ice. Steamboatmen consider it safe to venture out. Probably the board of Underwriters will remove their prohibition to-morrow against steamboats sailing. Large amounts of freight have accumulated at every port between here and Cairo. Mercury 35°. Barometer 29.30 and rising.

Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, January 12.—The weather here continues cold with the mercury at freezing point. The river is full of floating ice, making navigation difficult.

RIVER NEWS.

THE weather has again moderated. Yesterday it was thawing all day, with a fair prospect of rain during the next twenty-four hours. A continuation of the present weather will soon restore navigation.

THE attention of steamboatmen is called to the notice in our river column for a meeting on Tuesday evening, at 7 P. M., at the office of the Pittsburgh Insurance Company, corner of Market and Water streets. Something has to be done, the sooner the better for all parties interested.

Important to Steamboat Owners.

To all Captains and owners of steamboats doing business on the Ohio river:

GENTLEMEN: You are respectfully requested to attend a meeting on Tuesday evening, the 15th inst., at seven o'clock, at the Pittsburgh Insurance Office, corner of Market and Water streets, for the purpose of forming your interest into a joint stock company, and also forming lines of boats to different points, so as to give speed and regularity to transportation in time of delivery, and regulate prices of freight, which have been so uncertain and much complained of; all of which we will try to remedy.

At the call of

John Rhodes,	Geo. W. Reed,
Samuel Shuman,	John Noss,
R. C. Grey,	Wm. S. Evans,
John B. Conway,	George D. Moore,
Capt. M'Callum,	Andrew Ackley,
John M. Hare,	Capt. Beltzhoover,
James Rees,	Joseph H. Porter,
	Walter Scott.

Miscellaneous River Items.

The steamer "Deer Lodge," a mountain built steamer, will be sold at St. Louis, on the 19th. A fine chance for parties who wish to procure a first class boat.

The steamer Liberty, No. 4 had arrived at Cincinnati from Parkersburg.

STEAMER SUNK.—By dispatches from Galveston, we learn that the steamer Sunflower sunk in the Trinity River on last Sunday. She had upwards of 500 bales of cotton on board. The boat is reported a total loss, but the cotton will be saved. No lives lost.

Captain Kelly, of Cleveland Ohio, has on exhibition, at Cincinnati, a model of the "Le Pelley Rudder." It is a double power rudder, steers vessels in backing, and is said to be twice as strong as the old fashioned rudder, while it draws no dead water. Captain Kelly is superintending the construction of this rudder for Captain Throop's new Evansville and Cairo packet.

The old stern wheeler Marietta was sold at Sheriff's sale, at St. Louis, on Wednesday, to Wm. C. Daggett for $2,700. The Marietta has been laid up at the lower landing for several months past, having made but one cruise in twelve months, and that was with Lipman's circus from Cincinnati to St. Paul and back to this port, where she was "tied up" for debt.

Saturday's Cincinnati Commercial says:—The continued cold weather, heavy running ice, and low water, virtually suspend navigation again, it being hazardous for steamers to venture out. At last accounts the Clifton and Westmoreland had not succeeded in working their way through the gorge of ice at Louisville, just above the head of the canal. No boats can pass up or down at Louisville, until the gorge referred to is broken and cleared out.

Captain D. H. Swaney, of the Armadillo, and Captain Joseph L. Lytle, of the Camelia, left for Pittsburgh in last night's train.

The Belle Vernon had a narrow escape from being burned on Thursday evening. One of the crew placed a pan of grease on the stove in the deck room, when the heat of the stove set fire to the grease, but the cook of the Star light happened to observe it, and threw the pan into the river before any damage was done.

Captain James Sheddon, of the Lotus No. 2, arrived from Pittsburgh yesterday.

MARIETTA, January 11.—The river is falling slowly with five feet in the channel. Ice thin. The weather is cold, with indications of snow. The Petrolia, Curtis and Little Whale, are still in the Muskingum river, and the Glasgow at the "Brothers."

JEFFERSONVILLE, January 11.—There is scant three feet in the pass over the falls and falling. The ice is heavy from shore to shore. Our ferry boats have quit running. We use skiffs to cross to Louisville. The weather is moderating and cloudy, with indications of snow. The Westmoreland and Clifton are trying to break the ice away from the wharf at Louisville. I can not tell yet how they will succeed. No boats down yet.

Every steamer that left New Orleans Monday seemed to be crowded with freight and passengers, especially the Magenta, National, Frolic, Wild Wagoner, St. Nicholas, Last Chance, Vicksburg and others.

The towboat Bee left Cairo Friday with six barges which had been loaded there. They contained 41,200 sacks of corn, 4,000 sacks of wheat and 10,000 barrels of flour.
